

There is an optimistic tone pervading the yarn and cotton markets of Shanghai. Trading in these is the most active that has been witnessed for many months. Millowners are busy stampeding the market in an effort to purchase cotton, and as a result, almost every week new high records are being established in both spot and future Chinese raw cotton. The rice have not been violent nor are they secured in a single session but are steady and well graded. Trading at times has assumed a feverish trend, the bears becoming nervous and in their anxiety to cover have caused prices to harden further.

In connection with the steady advances in prices in recent weeks, the smallness of the arrivals of Chinese cotton at the opening of the season, as well as the bullish tone of the New York and Bombay markets and the expanding demand for manufactured cotton yarn, have been the dominating factors governing the rise. But, in addition, there is another important factor in connection with the rise which is receiving the serious consideration of the trade, and that is the vast amount of speculation in the staple. In fact, this purchasing, according to statements made in conservative quarters of the trade, is directly responsible for no small part of the big rise in values. Because this forced covering of short commitments has been responsible for a good part of the advance, many traders are beginning to question whether the advance is really genuine.

WIDENING DEMAND
That fundamental conditions constitute the chief factor in forcing prices upward is not questioned in the least, but what is puzzling both speculators and consumers is whether current prices are actually warranted by conditions in general, or whether the jump is merely the result of over-extended speculation on the short side on the part of individuals who speculate in cotton only as a side line. If the latter were the only factor in the recent appreciation in the value of Chinese raw cotton then a sharp reaction in prices should have set in as soon as these commitments on the short side were covered.

The steady improvement has been due largely to the widening demand for the manufactured product of the mills, and if the expectation that this demand will continue to grow in coming weeks materializes then it should have an important influence on the cotton area as good as reports make us believe then it is surprising that arrivals are small. There is only one conclusion that could be drawn from the fact, and that is that the Chinese farmers, realizing the healthy tone of the cotton market, and the possibility of Japan making larger purchases in the near future of raw cotton from China and also that stocks of the raw material in the hands of the Shanghai mills are not large, have combined to withhold supplies from the local market, offering just sufficient to create an impression that the crop has been a poor one or they are anticipating higher values.

INDIAN COTTON
Furthermore, there are many who are hesitant to make commitments on the long side in fear of not having cargo delivered to them in the event of a rising market or having adulterated staple tendered. In fact, already there have been known to have been cases of such a nature. Should the season prove a prosperous one for the mills there is no gainsaying that, whatever the yield of the present crop in China, it would be far short of the requirements of the mills. Once more we might have to draw upon India for large supplies. There is a limit beyond which prices of Chinese cotton cannot soar, for, so long as it sells at a price cheaper than it would

Missionaries In Honan Discover Leprosy Cure

A new complete cure for leprosy has been discovered in Honan province in the form of a drug called 'eparsen' according to a statement made by Dr. F. F. Carr-Harris, a Presbyterian medical missionary who is now in Montreal on furlough.

Dr. Carr-Harris said that French physicians experimenting with the drug at Weiwei-fu have cured fifteen out of eighteen victims of leprosy of the nodular type. Complete cures, in some of the cases, were obtained in from five to six weeks.

Dr. Carr-Harris is a medical missionary at Weiwei-fu, Honan.

Weather
Variable and rather fine weather. The maximum temperature yesterday was 77.9 and the minimum 57.6, the figures for the corresponding day last year being 76.1 and 56.8.

First Y.W.C.A. Convention Comes To Successful Close

The first national convention of the Young Women's Christian Association at Hangchow came to a close on Thursday night, with a devotional service and address by the Rev. Z. T. Kiang, of the Allen Memorial Church, Shanghai.

On Thursday morning recommendations were received and adopted as follows:

In response to an appeal from the National Christian Council, the Y.W.C.A. is to join with them in their effort to solve the social and industrial problems of China, and the newly elected National Committee was empowered to appoint three of its members for special work with the N.C.C.

A commission is to be appointed by the National Committee for the study of methods to attack the system of concubinage, and a request will go to the Y.M.C.A. that they appoint a commission to work with the Y.W.C.A. on this problem.

OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS
Recommendations concerning financial methods of Y.W.C.A. support, membership standards in city Associations, co-operation with community programs of physical education and recreation and public health, recommending to city Associations special attention to the furthering of mass education, were also adopted. A department for the training of Chinese secretaries was established by vote of the Convention. Recommendations were also adopted endorsing the closer co-operation of the women of the churches and of the Y.W.C.A. and that wherever possible the religious education work of the Y.W.C.A. should be centered in the church.

THE CONSTITUTION
The Constitution as adopted declares the purpose of the Y.W.C.A. of China to be "to unite, establish and develop the Young Women's Christian Associations of China, to share in the work of the World's Y.W.C.A. and to advance the spiritual, mental, physical and social welfare of women in order to co-operate with the Church in leading women to attain the fullness of life in the Saviour Jesus and in helping to bring in the Kingdom of God on earth."

The delegates declared a holiday on Wednesday afternoon and went in parties to visit Lin Yeng Temple or to shop in the famous fan and silk and cutlery shops of Hanschow.

$10,000 Ransom Demanded For Release Of Captive

(Special To The China Press)
Changsha, Oct. 26.—A German missionary named Strauss has been carried off by bandits and is being held under a demand of $10,000 ransom.

Conditions in Hunan province are rapidly growing worse.

The only missionary named Strauss listed in the latest directories is an F. Strauss who is attached to the China Inland Mission at Wukangchow.

SEN. UNDERWOOD OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR PRESIDENCY

(Reuter's Service)
New York, Oct. 25.—Opening his campaign for the Democratic Presidential nomination today at Dallas, Texas, Senator Underwood declared that America had surrendered her leadership of world affairs. She was losing herself in partisan politics. "The plain duty that lies ahead of us is to return to the principles guiding America in the Great War, to have and to exercise a definite Governmental policy in Europe that will function by peaceful means, aiding the establishment of a stable Government, re-establishing stable financial conditions and aiding in international understanding that will close the door to war."

First Y.W.C.A. Convention Comes To Successful Close

represented at the Convention, whose total registration, including the invited guests and visitors, was 194. Prominent among the guests was Miss Allen Kawai, representing the Y.W.C.A. of Japan, who came to present in person the greetings of the Association of her country and to thank the women of China for their part in the relief work so generously offered them in their recent disaster. Another guest of the convention was Miss Mary Ting of Shanghai, the first Chinese woman to enter the profession of Y.W.C.A. secretary and who is still on the staff of the Shanghai "Y" after seventeen years of service.

SEVEN NATIONALITIES
Seven nationalities were represented but the discussions on the floor of the convention were conducted only in English and Mandarin. Interesting interpretations were made when a Japanese woman spoke in English and a Chinese woman interpreted for her into Mandarin, or when a Cantonese spoke in English and a northern Chinese interpreted into Mandarin, or when a Swedish delegate interpreted from the Mandarin into English.

On Thursday afternoon at three-thirty the formal organization meeting was held in the assembly hall where the Convention sessions were held, with Mrs. T. C. Chu presiding.

NATIONAL COMMITTEE
At the time the National Committee was introduced. The following are elected by vote of the Convention:

From Shanghai—Mrs. Y. C. James Yen, Mrs. John Y. Lee, Miss Fan Yu-jung, Mrs. Fong F. Sec. Mrs. C. C. Chen, Mrs. F. K. Tsao, Mrs. Herman Liu, Mrs. S. Y. Hsieh, Mrs. K. S. Lee, Mrs. S. F. Hankow, October 23.—The Military Wireless Plant at Yehow, the gateway to Hunan, has been completed and is now in communication with the Military headquarters at Wuchang and Loyang.

In view of the resumption of fighting in Hunan, several brigades of Hupeh troops along the southern end of the Canton-Hankow Railway have been instructed by Tschun Hsiao Yachuan to proceed to guard Yehow, and rush to Changsha in time of need.

(Independent News Service)
Hankow, Oct. 23.—The price of all necessities of life such as rice, coal and water have all reached terribly high figures. During the time of siege by the Szechuen troops, rice was selling at over $100 per picul, while water was obtainable at $2 per bucket. At present, the blockade on the upper reaches of the Yangtze is keeping off from Chungking all down river supplies, and an abnormally H. C. L. is causing untold distress at Chungking.

(Independent News Service)
Hankow, Oct. 23.—General Chao Heng-ti left Changsha on the 21st for Chuchow where he is now taking active command of troops in operation against Tan Yen-kai's army. Heavy fighting is going on at Chuchow, and Chao's men are reported to have the adverse side of the war at present. The rumor that Chao evacuated Changsha originated from his departure from Changsha for the front.

There was a big fire in Changsha on the 21st, according to a telegram received by the N.K.K. office here. The fire started from a restaurant and lasted for six hours.

(Independent News Service)
Hankow, Oct. 23.—Wansien and Foochow are being heavily besieged by Szechuen troops, and General Yang Shen is practically entirely disabled for further resistance. Supplies and reinforcements are being rushed to Wansien, but its fall is considered hardly evitable.

Scenes Of Rural England At Ye Olde English Fayre

By Irene C. Kuhn

On one side of a wall China, unmistakably; on the other, just as unmistakably, England, lovely, rural England on a fair day, with rosy cheeked girls and women in flowered lawns and calicoes, hats gay with flowers and flying streamers, and a joyous hubbub over all.

This was the scene at Ye Olde English Fayre, arranged and presented at the Race Club under the auspices of the British Women's Association. The proceeds of the Fayre will go towards an endowment fund for headquarters, and a B.W.A. residence for members earning their living. With such an array of exhibits and novel features of entertainment, it is not impossible to do descriptive justice to any of them. The Australian and Canadian booths, with decorations typical of those dominions and products sent thousands of miles from them by merchants there, attracted great crowds of buyers. Lady Turner, presiding over the British Manufacturers' booth, was patroness of a most popular stall.

Inside the main hall there was a variety of exhibits, from potted plants and flowers, baskets of market produce, homemade candies, jams, jellies, marmalades and chutneys, to babies' worst toys, art objects and batik work sent, undoubtedly, from the Malay states.

BOOKSHOPPE POPULAR
One of the most popular stalls was Ye Olde Bookshoppe. Here, browsing around among the shelves of more than 1,000 volumes, were the bookworms, mostly husbands who had turned over their purses to wives and kiddies who were elsewhere. Within a hour after the fayre opened, the Bookshoppe had sold almost 100 volumes.

On the "Village Green" were hundreds of Shanghai kiddies. It was literally a paradise for them for there were donkey rides, on the backs of real donkeys, a merry-go-round with horses named for the Race Club favorites, "Old Bill," and others, a chute the chutes, a Punch and Judy theater and a hundred other odd entertainments for kiddies and grown-up kiddies.

Upstairs, tea was served in the Lavender Cottage, a perfect imitation of "back home." Upstairs, too, were art exhibits and a Silhouette Room where Artist Toeg did black and white cut-out portraits.

Everywhere, were Girl Guides, efficient, polite and picturesque.

LADY MACLEAY PRESIDES
Formal opening exercises, over which Lady Macleay presided, were held at 3 p.m. Sir Ronald and Lady Macleay were received by Mrs. O. M. Green, Acting Chairman of the B.W.A. and Mrs. C. H. Stitt, the chairman. Among those assembled on the platform were Sir Skinner and Lady Turner, Judge Grain, General H. Tunz, Dr. Fearn, Mr. and Mrs. Stitt, Mr. and Mrs. Moss, Sir Edward and Lady Pearce, Mr. S. Fessenden, Dean and Mrs.

Hinton in his own behalf said that at the time of the purchase he had no intention of defrauding the Dunlop company but that his comrade had absconded and he had no funds.

NOTES ARE EXCHANGED BY CURZON AND SECY. HUGHES ON PLAN FOR SETTLEMENT

America Willing To Participate In Economic Inquiry If European Powers Are Unanimous With Regard To Holding It, State Secretary Declares

(Reuter's Service)
London, Oct. 25.—A flood of light on General Smuts's reference on Tuesday to the fact that negotiations are on foot to hold a conference of the Powers with regard to reparations is thrown by the publication today of important telegrams which passed a few days ago between Marquess Curzon and Mr. Hughes, the United States Secretary of State.

The British Foreign Secretary asks if the United States still adheres to Mr. Hughes's declaration last December, which he suggested that an international conference should be held to assess Germany's capacity to pay and to consider an appropriate financial plan to ensure such payments.

Mr. Hughes replies in the affirmative and emphasizes that the United States does not desire to see Germany relieved of the responsibility for the war or her just obligations. He expresses the opinion that the conference should be advisory as the Governments are naturally unwilling to bind themselves in advance. The United States reserves decision with regard to participation in the proposed inquiry unless

GEN. HARTIGAN TO JOIN SON IN LAW OFFICES HERE

Manila, Philippines Arrives Today To Join Bar

General Thomas J. Hartigan, who will arrive on the President Jefferson today, has many friends in Shanghai, and is one of the best known and most successful attorneys in the Philippine Islands. He is the President of the Philippine Bar Association to which honor he has been three times elected.

He will join his son, Leonard W. Hartigan, of the Shanghai bar, and will probably establish here a branch of his Manila office, but confine himself to consultations and conferences on legal matters. General Hartigan has made a specialty of corporation law, and is general attorney to the Archdiocese of Manila, director and general counsel for the Manila Railroad Company, Director-Treasurer and attorney for the Manila Gas Corporation, director and attorney for the Manila Hotel Company, general attorney for the Bank of the Philippine Islands and Trust Company, and local attorney for the Yokohama Specie Bank, Ltd., and many other corporations. He is a director and member of the Executive Committee of the Philippine Carnival Association and a member of the Army and Navy, Manila, University, Elks and Country Clubs, and of the Casino Espanol and Tire Blanco.

General Hartigan is Brigadier-General of the National Philippine Guard since 1917. He also served in the Philippine Insurrection and the Spanish-American War as Major and Colonel, and is a West Point schoolmate of Generals Pershing, Crowder, Bullard, McIntyre, and many other well known American Officers.

BRITISH ENVOY TO JAPAN PASSES THROUGH CITY
Sir Charles Elliot, the British Ambassador to Japan, who has been away on leave, passed through Shanghai yesterday returning to Japan. Sir Charles was in India when the earthquake occurred but immediately made all arrangements to return to the stricken country and render every possible assistance to British subjects there as soon as possible. During his short visit in Shanghai the Ambassador stayed with Mr. J. Bradley of the British Office of Works.

Baldwin Makes Frank Address

(Reuter's Service)
London, Oct. 25.—Mr. Stanley Baldwin received an ovation when he addressed a mass meeting of 5,000 people at Plymouth today. He contended that the Government had a definite foreign policy on which the Cabinet was united, and had lost no opportunity of endeavoring to the common action necessary to end European troubles.

He said that the Government did not follow up the Note of August 21 because immediately afterwards it became obvious that passive resistance in Germany was on the verge of collapse and it was feared that it might then be resumed. Then came President Coolidge's statement offering American participation, it invited by all the Allies, in an Allied conference or to be represented by experts on a committee of experts under the auspices of the Reparations Commission.

The Government immediately addressed the Allies strongly urging a prompt reply in the affirmative. Mr. Baldwin said that he had had the pleasure of meeting M. Poincare and establishing relations which made it perhaps not too difficult to say what he was going to say. Now M. Poincare represents the opinion of practically the whole of France and I beg him to consider for himself and his nation, for us and for the world once, twice and thrice before refusing this invitation.

SITUATION GRAVE
Mr. Baldwin reiterated the Government's well-known policy with regard to reparations. He declared that the disintegration or disruption of Germany must put back for years her power to make reparations. We could not contemplate the breaking off of any part of Germany into a separate State for that would immediately break the Treaty of Versailles. The position was grave but "it is impossible to me that when an opportunity presents itself, as at present, for a chance of settlement, there should be anyone who would refuse it."

Referring to unemployment the Prime Minister declared that the Government intended to depart from a sound financial policy. The Government was not pursuing active deflation and it certainly did not propose to proceed in the direction of deflation. With regard to unemployment in the shipyards, he announced that the Government had decided to lay down several light cruisers for replacement of the County class, which was many years overdue. The building program was in strict conformity with the terms of the Washington Conference. It was merely anticipating work which must in any case be undertaken in a couple of years' time.

Mr. Baldwin said that Mr. Poincare's fiscal pledge bound him and in this Parliament there would be no fundamental change. He could not see that any slight extension or adaptation of the principles hitherto sanctioned by the Legislature were breaches of the pledge, but if at any time he were challenged, he was always willing to take a verdict. He had come to the conclusion that the only way to fight unemployment was by protecting the home market (Prolonged cheers).

Britain Split Over Address

(Reuter's Service)
London, Oct. 25.—General Smuts's speech, which was broadcast by wireless, was heard not merely throughout Britain but probably in Paris and over a large part of the Continent, continues to be the absorbing topic. That section of the press which is generally anti-French in tone acclaims Smuts as a statesman capable of leading Europe out of the abyss by an appeal to moral force, speaking with a directness of vigour of which hitherto no evidence has been given by any British statesman, while the pro-French organs deplore his "unfortunate incursion" into foreign politics without the necessary equipment. It is pointed out that the undefined position of General Smuts is convenient as it enables him to say things which are desirable to say without investing them with the atmosphere of a formal declaration. Some papers declare that his views are those of all the overseas statesmen in London.

The Duke of Devonshire, speaking at a banquet in honor of the Dominions representatives in London, said that he was profoundly thankful to General Smuts for his contribution to the solution of the greatest existing problem. He felt that when the representatives of the great Dominions knew that they could come here, with full liberty of thought and speech, it was emblematic of the conditions under which we were governed.

There is little comment in the French press up to the present. The Diplomatic Gazette says that French opinion is shocked and surprised for the moment inclined to refuse all idea of an international conference. He asserts that M. Poincare will never sit at the same table with General Smuts after the latter's speech.

The Temps denounces the "venomous attack on France." The Echo de Paris sees the existence of concerted action between "anti-French" diplomats of Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. McKenna and General Smuts and the sudden outbreak of German lamentations before the Reparations Commission.

Great Interest Aroused In U.S.

(Reuter's Service)
New York, Oct. 25.—General Smuts's speech has aroused great interest and is quoted at length on the front pages of the newspapers and splashed with big headlines. It is regarded as a reply to the efforts of the discredited British Ministers to muzzle the Imperial Conference. It is pointed out that General Smuts's speech was delivered within twenty-four hours of the speech by Mr. Lloyd George at Indianapolis, who also urged an international conference on reparations.

(BY UNITED PRESS)
Washington, Oct. 25.—The text of the cablegrams exchanged by England and America regarding the reparations situation, as published today simultaneously in both countries, shows that America is willing to enter into an allied economic conference in an advisory capacity but withhold its decision in the event that the conference does not include all of the allies.

Allan Named Receiver For Kearny Company

Mr. A. S. Allan of the American legal firm of Hartigan & Allan, has been named receiver for The Kearny Company by Judge Charles S. Paris, Oct. 25.—The Rhineland, as far as can be judged, the situation in the Rhineland seems to be that the directors of the Separatist movement were surprised by the sudden outbreak of the local movement at Aix-la-Chapelle, which forestalled the development of the general plan. The correspondent of the Journal des Debats reports that the Separatist movement continues to spread whilst the resistance of the Prussian authorities appears to be holding stronger.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE ON LIFE INSURANCE

WHITE HOUSE, WASHINGTON

Every insurance policy is a declaration of independence, a charter of economic freedom. He who holds one has overcome adversity.

He who sells an insurance policy sells a certificate of character, an evidence of good citizenship, an unimpeachable title to the right of self-government.

There is no argument against the taking of life insurance. It is established that the protection of one's family, or those near to him, is the one thing most to be desired, and there is no medium of protection that is better than life insurance. Our government has given close attention to the insurance companies, and they are on so sure a foundation that it is in substance a guaranteed method of protection for our people.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE AGAINST WHITE DISMISSED

Magistrate King Rules Court
Has No Jurisdiction

The case in which Andrew Taylor White was charged with embezzlement of £1,500 and Yen 1,000 from the Paili Steel Company (England), Ltd. in Tokyo and in Shanghai, was dismissed by Magistrate King yesterday for lack of jurisdiction.

Mr. White, according to Mr. Reader Harris for the prosecution, was engaged as manager for the steel company while he was in England and arrived in Japan with £1,000 of the company's funds. In August 1930 more was sent him and he was ordered to report in Shanghai to Mr. Reginald Wilson, Overseas managing director for the company.

Upon Mr. Wilson's arrival here, Mr. Harris said Mr. White was here and sent no report. Mr. Wilson therefore called White for a full report but received no answer until after the earthquake when he received a cable informing him that their offices had been destroyed and White needed funds. Mr. Wilson accordingly wired him Yen 1,000 and again wrote asking for a full report.

IN SHANGHAI
Nothing more was heard from the defendant, Mr. Harris said, until he walked into Mr. Wilson's offices here in Shanghai. Asked for an accounting of expenditures White is alleged to have said that he had spent £300 for the privilege of a telephone and had to entertain the Arsenal authorities but had no vouchers to prove his expenditures.

Mr. White has been in Shanghai three weeks, Mr. Harris said, but despite requests still has made no accounting of how funds in his possession were spent.

JURISDICTION
Magistrate King and Mr. Harris then engaged in a verbal duel concerning the question of jurisdiction. The Magistrate advanced the belief that as the alleged embezzlement had occurred in Tokyo he had no jurisdiction. Mr. Harris submitted that while the alleged crime had actually been committed at Tokyo White was now within the jurisdiction of the court and refused to accept an accounting. On that ground Mr. Harris said, the Court was competent.

Magistrate King cited cases showing that while the Court has jurisdiction of cases in China and on waters within 100 miles of China the Court could not assume jurisdiction in a case where the crime alleged was committed in another country.

Mr. Harris, with the greatest respect, submitted several times that the Magistrate was wrong in his ruling, but Magistrate King could not see the point otherwise and ordered the charge against Mr. White dismissed. Mr. J. H. Teesdale appeared for the defendant.

Governor Walton Keeps Office In Spite Of Order

(BY UNITED PRESS)
Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 25.—Governor J. L. Walton today defied the order of the Oklahoma Senate, suspending him from office pending the impeachment proceedings which have been brought against him in the legislature.

Governor Walton is living in his office, with special armed constables stationed outside the doors to act as guards.

The Senate is seeking a means to eject the governor and will probably ask for a court order in the matter, in this manner "passing the buck" to the state courts to act as guards.

Fight To Finish On In Philippines

(Exclusive China Press)
Manila, Oct. 25.—Leading members of the Philippines legislature today declared that the war is on to a finish to obtain independence for the Philippines and the removal of Governor General Leonard Wood and his replacement by a Filipino.

Symons, Mr. Alister Campbell, Mrs. Irvine and Mr. and Mrs. Thompson.

An address of welcome to the distinguished visitors was made by Mrs. O. M. Green. She said: "Mrs. O. M. Green, Acting Chairman of the B. W. A., made the following opening address: 'Sir Ronald and Lady Macleay, Ladies and Gentlemen, 'It is with very great pleasure that we welcome Sir Ronald and Lady Macleay to-day. Lady Macleay, I am voicing the feelings of the whole of the British Women's Association, when I say that we look upon you and Sir Ronald's presence at our Fayre, and the long journey involved to accomplish that, as a very gracious act on your part. This is the biggest adventure our Association has undertaken, and we are glad that you and Sir Ronald have thought so well of us, as to come and help us in this kindly manner.'"

"Before Lady Macleay declares our Fayre open, there are a few points I wish briefly to touch on, and I promise I will be brief. 'Firstly, I wish to express our sincere regret that the earlier departure from Shanghai of Mrs. Simms, our late Acting Chairman, has made her presence here impossible. It seems a little hard on her, that she should have had the work of Chairman of the Organising Committee of the Fayre, and not to be here to see the results. Mrs. Sydney Barton, our President is at home so we have not the pleasure of having her with us. Mrs. Gull, our Chairman is also on home leave."

"Mrs. Stitt has very generously at the eleventh hour, taken over the work of Chairman of the Organising Committee of the Fayre, from Mrs. Simms, and we are very grateful to her for her energies and hard work. 'I wish on behalf of the Association to thank all those friends who have helped us to make the Fayre what we hope will be a wonderful success. 'May I especially thank the Stewards of the Race Club for so generously lending us these premises to-day and for the kind and considerate way they have met all our requests."

"Time does not permit of my mentioning the names of all who have worked so hard for the Fayre. But I cannot omit some thanks to Mrs. Leslie, our hard working secretary, and to Mr. and Mrs. Chris Wingrove and Mr. Butts, who did the decorations. 'Also we extend our grateful thanks to the many firms in Shanghai and in Great Britain, Canada, Australia and New Zealand, who have given freely of their goods for our benefit."

"We hope their kindness means that the B. W. A. has justified its existence in the eyes of Shanghai, during the last three years."

"The proceeds of the Fayre are to go towards an Endowment Fund for Head Quarters and a B. W. A. Residence for members earning their own livings, which Residence we hope will materialise in the near future."

"I must not delay the fun of the fair longer, except to ask our generous Shanghai public to help us to-day to make our Fayre the success that will repay the very hard work that our Association members and friends have put into it."

"I now call upon Mrs. Stitt to ask Lady Macleay to declare our Fayre open."

In reply, Lady Macleay professed herself as pleasantly surprised by the great proportions which the Fayre had taken. Had she known, she would have hesitated to have accepted the honor of presiding at its opening."

Lady Macleay went on to say that she wanted to give her personal views of the aims and objects of the Fayre, and said it took them back to the war when women had played a very important part in volunteering to go to the front, and they had learned the service of self-denial and sacrifice and had sown the seeds of enterprise and efficiency. These seeds had not fallen on stony ground, and a new dawn had opened to girls and women—the days of Queen Bess when "sit by the fire" was no longer applicable. New problems had arisen and among them the housing problem, which was also keenly felt in Shanghai and the B.W.A., had thought it wise to find a home for working girls where they could be happy and secure; and she felt that this Fayre was to be the means of raising the necessary funds, and it had her best wishes, and she called on everyone there to support it."

Sir Skinner Turner, on behalf of the members and all present thanked Sir Ronald and Lady Macleay for attending, and three hearty cheers were afterwards given for them.

TODAY'S PROGRAM
The program at the Fayre for today offers entertainment even more varied than that of yesterday. There will be dancing by Mrs. Kelly's pupils in the Concert room at 3:30 p.m. The Juvenile Lyric Entertainers will give a concert arranged by Miss Jean Armstrong and will collect money for the Australian stall. Old English dances arranged by Miss Jervis, will be danced on the Village Green at 3:00, 5:30 and in the course of the evening. Billy Tingle, Australian boxer, will give an exhibition during the evening.

The Fayre will be open from 2:30 p.m. to midnight today. Tea will be served in the afternoon. An old English dinner will be served by the Carlton Cafe in the tea room at the Fayre at 8 p.m. and a Japanese dinner will be provided in the tiffin room from 7 p.m. Supper will be served from 9:30 p.m. and throughout the evening in the dancing hall.

B.W.A. CONCERT
Lovers of music, and particularly of old English songs and ballads, are reminded of the program of such numbers which will be given on Sunday, November 4, at 9:30 p.m. by well-known local singers in aid of the B.W.A. Residence Fund. The concert will be given, through the kindness of Mrs. Stitt, at her residence, 173 Bubbling Well Road, and those participating will include Mrs. Rowles-Smith, Mrs. Muriel, Mr. C. F. Dumbarton and Mr. W. J. Dexter, with Mr. R. C. Young at the piano. Tickets in limited number, at $2 each, may be secured at Moulton's or B.W.A. headquarters.

Washington Facts Fail To Decrease Tension, Claim

(Reuter's Service)
The Hague, Oct. 25.—In the Second Chamber today the Foreign Minister, Jonkhoe van Karnebeck, defended the bill for the construction of a Dutch East Indies Fleet from the international standpoint. He said that the Washington Treaty had not removed the causes of tension between Japan and America, which consisted in an antithesis of interest between America and Japan with regard to China as a market. This tension would not decrease if Europe absorbed less American products.

The compulsory jurisdiction of the Permanent Court of International Justice was only accepted by a small number of states, and they would therefore continue the preparations deemed suitable for the maintenance of peace between nations. The safety of the state demanded, that they should take into account certain facts for which Holland was not responsible.

Peking Planning Rail Guard System

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, Oct. 25.—The Cabinet yesterday evening resolved to appoint General Tang Tsai-li Director-General of the Railway Guards Bureau. This announcement created a favorable impression in diplomatic circles. It is understood that General Munthe has been offered the post of Co-Director-General, but it is uncertain whether he will accept. General Tang Tsai-li was Vice-Chief of the General Staff and President of the Military Council under President Yuan Shih-kai. He also served as Military Attaché in London and is generally considered one of the most efficient Chinese officers.

(Eastern News Agency)
Peking, Oct. 25.—According to a Chinese press report, at today's cabinet meeting it was decided voluntarily to carry through the Government plan of safeguard-

Tingle Gets Decision Over Chadwick In Fine Boxing Bout At Carlton

All-Star Program, With One Exception, Carried Out As Advertised; Garcia Beats Ifigora; Favacho Wins Over Toledo

By West

The all-star boxing program staged last night in the ball room of the New Carlton Cafe provided the large number of leading citizens who foregathered there with a fine evening's entertainment. Some of the stars did not

Time was when the battle-browed bruisers, with calloused and ponderous paws, were egged on by roughnecks and boozers. As they fractured antagonists' jaws, twinkle with the brightness that was expected of them; in fact they got about as far in the twinkling line as the toes encased in the average brogan at a hot carriers' ball, but this tick of lustre on their part was made up by the brilliance with which the others shone. The main eventers, Billy Tingle and Sallor Chadwick, put on an exhibition that would have caused a riot had it been staged elsewhere than in Louie Ladow's sedate ballroom.

Billy, as was generally predicted by the sharps, won the decision. Time was when the uppercut stoppers and breakers of noses and slats, carried on while the vigilant coppers stood by with their handcuffs and cision over the fast little British fighting man, but by no wide margin. Their bout went the full fifteen rounds, as scheduled, and every round had more fighting in it than a Balkan feud. Billy won partly on his aggressiveness, and partly by reason of the fact that he landed a few more blows than the sailor, although neither boy did any damage and both were going strong at the finish. The decision in favor of the Australian, which was agreed upon unanimously and without debate by Dr. O'Hara, the referee, and Capt. Barrett and Mr. H. D. Rodger, judges, was approved by practically every Billed Shirt in the house, which applies also to the Evening

Time was when the boys who take And toll minus trousers or shirts. Won fame amidst reeking surroundings. That were hardly a place for the skirts.

Gowns, of which there was a large sprinkling among the spectators. As to the other bouts, the best was furnished by Garcia and Tigera, who appeared in what is known in leather pushing circles as the semi-windup. These boys, both Filipinos, set a fast pace in their eight round battle. It looked at times like one of the pair might flatten the other—Tigera, particularly, seeming to have his rival on the ragged edge in the fifth stanza of their little party; but when these opportunities came they could not be pressed due to arm weariness brought on by the expenditure of

Last night—just behold! Lovely Susan, And Minnie and Gertrude and Lou, Sitting out at the Carlton, oozin' Great gobs of delight at the view. energy necessary to create the openings. Garcia got the decision. The Favacho-Toledo bout for the welterweight championship of China was a slambang affair that was full of action, although a lot of it was awkward. Favacho had slightly the better of the battle all the way, and in the final rounds his lead was quite pronounced. Dr. O'Hara rightly gave him the decision.

What had been regarded as one of the most promising events on the program, the De Dios-Garlang battle, proved a complete wash-out. In the first place Garlang did not appear, his place being taken by Kid Carletos. De Dios and Carletos had fought two previous battles here, the first one being a hair raiser, and the second a boy was really trying. They went at it with speed enough, but hadn't been fighting a minute until it was seen that both were punning their blows. After that the bout shaded off into an exhibition of sparring. They were stopped after three rounds.

It was explained afterward that De Dios injured his hand severely in the first mix-up, and reliable witnesses testified that they personally saw De Dios with a badly swollen wrist later in the evening.

The curtain later consisted of a four round set-to between Carleton and John, local amateurs. They didn't show much.

Getting back to the Tingle-Chadwick scrap, this was a real argument between two of the cleverest boys ever seen in action here, at least in recent years. When they entered the ring it was seen that Chadwick had quite an advantage over Billy in weight and reach; it being subsequently

What a kick they extracted from Some bruiser, too slow for the pace. As his foe man, relentless, kept shooting a million odd fists in his face announced that Tingle's weight was 115 pounds, and that the Sailor was five pounds heavier.

Both boys were in excellent physical condition, as attested by the fact that neither blackened pace during the battle, which went on without a let-up for the whole fifteen rounds. It was quickly apparent that neither boy would land a hay-maker unless by some lucky chance, as both were too skilful in defense. Billy immediately assumed the offensive, but found the Sailor perfectly willing to mix it. The Australian tried all during the battle to catch Chadwick with an uppercut when the sailor rushed him, but of perhaps a score of these that he let fly only one came anywhere near the navy boy's elusive chin, all the others being easily side stepped or warded off. Billy's favorite plan of battle, with the body his objective in the early rounds, was blocked by How sweet they appeared, and how salty. As they razed a poor goat, nearly in. As he hung on the ropes, breathing faintly. With not a flip left in his fin.

Chadwick, the Sailor boy's arms being two powerful for Billy. He was unable to weaken the sailor by pounding his slats, as he did in his contest with De Dios. Seeing the futility of this method of attack the Australian tried for openings to the head, but this quest was blocked every time by Chadwick's long left.

With a less experienced fighter than Tingle in front of him Chadwick would have won easily. Time and again he went at the Australian with a rush that would have swept the Kangaroo off his feet, and left him wide open for a fatal punch. Billy, however, knew just how to meet these rushes, and had the speed in his legs to make that knowledge effective. Once or twice he caught Chadwick in the pantry with terrific wallops immediately after side stepping the navy boy's fiercely driven right leads.

It was a fine, clean fight, and one that was appreciated to the full by everybody present. All were sorry that Chadwick had to lose, but all recognised that in fairness to Tingle no other decision was possible.

Away with fox trotters and crawlers; Away with the tame family row; The girls have gone in for the maulers; A kayo's th' least they'll take now.

The arrangements for the bouts were perfect, and the setting one that must have dazed the battlers. Nearly all the men were in dinner clothes, Billy Bell'w being particularly distinguished in his handsome Tux. E. P. Graham-Barrow who was the official announcer made a nice little talk previous to the curtain raiser, and introduced the officials, and later

'RUM-RUNNING' IS DISCUSSED BY CONFERENCE

Canada-U. S. Fisheries Pact
Will Also Be Debated

(Reuter's Service)
London, Oct. 25.—The Imperial Economic Conference today began consideration of reciprocal judgments and currency. The Committee of Imperial Experts assembled at the Foreign Office. The agenda included whisky-running in the United States and the treaty-making powers of the Dominion, when the recent fisheries treaty between Canada and the United States will undoubtedly arise.

Mr. Baldwin was unable to attend today owing to his departure for Plymouth to deliver a speech at the Conservative Conference.

Armistice Day Dinner To Be On November 10

As Armistice Day this year falls on a Sunday the United Services Association have decided to give their usual dinner on Saturday, November 10. The committee in charge of the affair have engaged the dining room of the New Carlton Cafe for that evening and have made arrangements for 500 guests.

A concert will be given in the dining room following the dinner. Reservations may be made with Major E. H. McMichael at 36 Jinkee Road. French and American veterans' association's committee members will be the guest of the Committee on the occasion.

New Dollar Ships Cost $4,000,000; Rate $40 A Ton

The seven new "502" type vessels which the Robert Dollar Company recently purchased from the United States Shipping Board to establish a round-the-world freight and passenger service which will include Shanghai as a port of call, cost $4,000,000, according to information received by THE CHINA PRESS yesterday.

Announcement of the price paid, which was withheld at the time of the announcement of the title of the ships, has been made in San Francisco by Chairman Edward P. Farley. The price works out at the rate of approximately $40 gold a ton.

Peaceable To Be Speaker At Legion Tiffin

Sir Robert Ho Tung of Hongkong will speak on the Round Table conference plan he has suggested for the unification of China at a tiffin to be given by the Frederick Ward Peet of the American Legion at the Hotel Peninsula on next Friday, November 2.

The tiffin is the first of a series to be given by the Legion and all Legionnaires and ex-service men in Shanghai are invited to attend and bring guests if they so desire. Reservations at $1.50 per plate may be made with Mr. C. S. Franklin, Glen Line building, or Mr. J. T. Wright, American Consulate-General.

Parliament Opens Session At Peking

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, Oct. 26.—The ceremony of inauguration of the extraordinary session of Parliament took place this morning in the presence of a large attendance of Members of both Houses at the House of Representatives. Contrary to expectation President Tsao Kun did not attend but was represented by Admiral Li Ting-hain, the Minister of the Navy, who read an address from the Chief Executive in which the latter expressed appreciation of the services of the Members in completing the Constitution and appealed for co-operation between the Legislature, the Judiciary and the Administration.

The Speaker, Mr. Wu Ching-lien, replied in a short address hoping that the Members would work for national peace. Subsequently all bowed three times to the National Flag and the Palace Band played the National Anthem.

Tingle Wins Over Sailor Chadwick

the scrappers, in a voice that would have won him a seat in parliament, or at least the House of Lords, had he elected to let his great talents find expression in his native England.

Dinny Doyle was round counter and disproved the popular illusion concerning the lack of relationship between arithmetic and oratory. Louie Ladow hovered in the background, scrutinising the house like a windjammer's skipper a threatening sky.

Altogether it was a great night, and the whole body of fight fans and fanatics in this little old one egg town ought to pass a unanimous vote of thanks to Sam Davis and Dr. O'Hara and the others who conceived the enterprise and drove it through to such a successful conclusion.

More Gendarmes To Face Charges

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Tokio, Oct. 26.—As the result of Captain Amakasu's refutation of his previous declaration that he was responsible for the death of Oseugi's nephew, which sensationally closed the opening sessions of his trial, four other gendarmes, suspected of having connection with the murder, have been arrested and submitted to a preliminary trial. According to the findings, which have now been published, they are declared to be implicated. The trial of the accused will re-open on November 10.

Irrigation Work Started In India

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Bombay, Oct. 25.—Sir George Lloyd, the Governor of Bombay, today initiated the world's greatest irrigation scheme by laying the foundation of the Sukkur barrage. The barrage is a mile long, spanning the Indus. This, with a network of canals for the irrigation of 8,000,000 acres of the land, will cost £12,000,000.

You'll Not Be Bald Even At 80

Hair Grows Again, Hair Made Beautiful, Youthful-Looking Returns

Your hair will never grow out as fast as it falls out. You can make it, not only stop falling out, but grow beautifully, besides restoring its natural, youthful, normal color. This is done by the amazing discovery, GERMOL. It gives every hair root its original youthful vigor and makes the scalp active. Every hair root now develops great strength in gripping the hair so they cannot fall out. The hair begins to grow profusely; its color returns. GERMOL is not a dye. GERMOL is a vigor intensifier. Your first trial will prove these startling results. And your hair troubles at once. Use GERMOL, you will need nothing else.

New Boycott On Japanese Urged At Hankow Meet

(Independent News Service)
Hankow, Oct. 22.—Several civilian organizations of Hankow including some labor unions met last Saturday and held the inauguration of the Provincial Diplomatic Association for the purpose of furthering the anti-Japanese boycott. Eight resolutions urging effective peaceful means to enforce the boycott were passed at the meeting, and some violent speeches were made on the occasion.

The Japanese authorities have repeatedly requested the Wuchang authorities to suppress the boycott with no tangible success. It has been pointed out by the Japanese that Hankow is now the only center

THE MOST LAVISHLY BEAUTIFUL DRAMA OF MARRIED LIFE EVER PRODUCED

CECIL B. DeMILLE'S

'Supreme Screen Success

By JEANIE MacPHERSON

What are the duties of a wife to a husband who steadily drags her downward?

What shall she do when another offers a fine, true love that would lift her up?

These are the questions asked and answered in "Forbidden Fruit." A drama warm with the flesh and blood of living men and women.

Dressed in all the glowing color and luxury that DeMille weaves like a cloth of gold.

"FORBIDDEN FRUIT" 8 PARTS

A Paramount Picture

The man had fallen in love with a woman he did not know.

Never dreaming this radiant creature the drudging, unhappy wife of a wastrel.

For her Cinderella's heart had leaped to taste of joy and luxury for one night. And when love answered love.....

The rest is a drama that goes to the very bottom of marriage. Glowing with the color, richness and fashion that only DeMille can paint on the screen.

ASIA LIFE SUES RICE FOR EXPENSE ACCOUNTING

Former General Manager
Spent M. $7,651 In United States

The Asia Life Insurance Company, through Haskell and Moss, have filed suit in the United States Court for China against Mr. W. R. Rice, former General Manager of the company, and prominent insurance man, for an accounting for $7,651 spent by Mr. Rice while in the United States on business for the company.

The action will have its first hearing before Judge Lobingier when it appears on the motion calendar on next Monday.

In the petition the life insurance company alleges that Mr. Rice, when General Manager for the company, was authorized to make a business trip to the United States in the interests of the company and was advanced sums aggregating $7,651 to cover his expenses. Mr. Rice sailed for the United States on January 25, 1923, and remained there until May 3, returning to Shanghai on May 13.

The Asia Life Insurance Company alleges that Mr. Rice has consistently refused to submit an itemized expense account supported by vouchers covering his expenses in the United States although he himself drew up a standard expense account from which he required all employees to fill in. The company asks for an accounting for $7,651 of the total amount.

Mr. Rice through his attorneys, Schuhl and Schoenfeld, has entered a general denial to all the material allegations in the petition.

First Y.W.C.A. Convention Comes To Successful Close

From Tientsin—Mrs. T. L. Chao.
From Mukden—Mrs. C. F. Wang.
Members for special student representation—Miss Phoebe Hob, of Qihling College; Miss Pang, of Methodist Girls' School in Peking; Miss Yu Si-e, of Soochow, and Miss Liao Lung-jih of Canton.
From Tsingtao—Mrs. D. Y. Lin.
Provision is also made for representatives to be selected by centers in process of organization by Y.W.C.A.

GOVERNOR REPRESENTED
At this meeting the civil governor of Chekiang sent a representative and greetings and telegrams were read from the World's Committee of the Y.W.C.A. from the Y.M.C.A. Convention at Canton, and the official representatives from the Y.W.C.A. in other countries gave the greetings of their membership. The National Y.W.C.A. of China thus adds its eight thousand members to the thousands of other Christian women in 27 other countries and becomes a part of the largest organization of women in the world.

MEETING HERE
The delegates returned to Shanghai by special cars, arriving at dinner time on Friday. Some of them proceeded at once to their homes, and many are held over in Shanghai awaiting a sailing. Secretaries, both Chinese and foreign, will meet for two days conference, beginning Sunday afternoon, in the home and garden of Mrs. O'Ben on Kiangwan Road. Tea will be served at the Y.W.C.A. Normal School of Hygiene and Physical Education on Saturday and an entertainment provided for the Convention delegates by the students of the school.

On Monday evening at eight o'clock the Cantonese Church of Shanghai will entertain those delegates who are still in Shanghai.

Mrs. Fung, delegates from the Chongtu Association, started on the long trip to Soochow on Friday in company with a party of missionaries. The Changsha delegates are uncertain as to the date of their return, owing to the unsettled conditions in Hunan.

"Lost" Steamer Is Nearing Port

(Reuters Service)
London, Oct. 25.—The British steamer Westmoreland, which was feared to have been lost, has been signalled 250 miles west of Valentia Island. Reuter's New York correspondent telegraphs that the erroneous report of the sinking of the vessel was brought to New York by the master of a Danish steamer whose good faith was not questioned. His operator had evidently misinterpreted the wireless.

The New Maxima Cafe is providing its patrons a treat tonight with the "Seattle Jazz Band" and a number of feature acts. The members of this orchestra are not only playing to hear in the aggregate but each is a specialty artist as well and a number of feature acts are promised. In conjunction with the visiting jazz party, the band will give character songs, augmented by Harry Perry's band.

The management of the Seattle entertainers was made by Manager Irving C. Gurell at the request of many of the patrons who heard the previous programs.

Robbers Snatch Gold Bangles From Woman

Two Chinese robbers committed an armed highway robbery on the corner of Kwangsi and Avenue Edward VII at 10 p.m. on Thursday night, according to a report made to the municipal police yesterday.

A Chinese woman living on Avenue Hue was waiting for a French Concession into the Settlement when on the corner of Avenue Hue two men, one of whom was armed with a white steel pistol, approached her and before she could offer resistance snatched a pair of gold bangles valued at $135 from her wrists, raised an alarm and the constable on duty gave chase but the men in a mass of alleys.

Impressos May Go Back On Manila Run

Mr. Allan Cameron, Oriental manager for the Canadian Pacific, has just returned from Manila, where he has just issued statements to the newspapers there that it was not the intention of the Canadian Pacific to withdraw their four express liners from Manila permanently. Mr. Cameron said the Express liners would once more make the run to Manila, instead of stopping at Hongkong, as soon as the ships in the Philippines showed an intention to give them an equitable part of the freight business. Mr. Cameron returned to Hongkong on the President Jefferson which is due here today.

Collegians Party At Columbia Club Tonight

Graduates and former students from American universities now in China will gather at the Columbia Country Club tonight for their annual Autumn party. A large number of reservations have been made for the affair, which promises to be one of the most successful given by the collegians.

Dancing and entertainment features will prevail until midnight, when a cold supper will be served. There is no curfew ban placed on the party and it will break up sometime during the wee sma' hours tomorrow morning.

Arrangements for the party have been made by a committee composed of Mr. Frank Courtney, Mr. Larry Lehrbas, Mr. V. Fong Lam and Mr. J. B. Powell.

Conseil d'Administration Municipale de la Concession Francaise de Changhai

NOTICE

MUNICIPAL LOAN OF 1923

8,000 debentures of Tls. 100 each
(issued at Tls. 97 each)

Rate of interest 6% per annum

The "Conseil d'Administration Municipale de la Concession Francaise de Changhai" hereby invite subscriptions for 8,000 debentures of Tls. 100 each, issued at Tls. 97 each according to the resolution passed at their General Meeting on the 14th May 1923.

The conditions on which the Debenture Certificates will be issued are:

1°—The Debenture Certificates are transferable, and the person whose name is entered in the Register of Debenture Certificate or Certificates, shall alone be recognised and treated by the Council as the lawful and rightful holder and owner of such Debenture Certificate or Certificates.

2°—The Debentures will be issued at Tls. 97 each

3°—The Debentures will be redeemable at par (Tls. 100 each) in not less than 10 years and not more than 30 years, from 1st December 1923 and according to the figures determined by the Council.

4°—The Debentures will bear interest at 6% per annum, payable on the 31st day of May and 30th day of November in each year, when interest warrants will be issued to the registered owner.

5°—The Debenture Certificates will be issued and bear interest from 1st July 1923.

6°—Applications for Debentures will be received at the Secretary's Office, Rue du Consulat, from June 20 next. A cheque representing the amount of debentures asked for and payable on June 30th must be deposited at the same time.

7°—Applications for Debentures under 97 will not be recognised by the Council.

8°—For further informations, apply to Mr. P. Legendre, Secretary, French Municipal Council, Shanghai, 31st May 1923.

By Order,

P. LEGENDRE
Secretary.

Curb On Sale Of Opium
In Malay States Asked

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 24.—The following petition to the F. M. S. Government was signed by over 2,000 people of all nationalities represented there. It was headed by the Perak Anti-Opium Society at Cheah Cheang Lim, President of Ipoh:

To the Honourable the Chief Secretary to Government Kuala Lumpur, F. M. S.

The humble petition of the Anti-Opium Societies, Merchants, Miners, Planters, Financiers, Engineers, Clerks and other residents of the Federated Malay States who have unanimously approved of this petition respectively sheweth:

1. That the general consensus of opinion among employers and educated wage-earners in the Federated Malay States is that abolition of trade in opium in this country could not fail to prove beneficial to both the States and to the public generally.

2. That the traffic in opium which has been denounced by every civilised nation in the world has been considered by the Council of the League of Nations with the result that the Nations constituting the League have resolved to abolish it.

3. That the British Empire, the protector of the Federated Malay States is a member of the League of Nations with greater representation upon its Council than any other nation.

4. That the opium habit is still sapping the vitality of its votaries in British Malaya.

5. That without injury to a single individual to whom the sudden drastic stoppage of access to the drug would mean serious illness, and in many cases death, the traffic can be put an end to in the course of a single generation by prohibiting the sale of chandu to and the consumption thereof by any person other than those duly licensed to purchase and consume it: such licences to be limited to persons actually using the drug for their own consumption at the present time.

6. That to effect the abolition of the opium habit all that would be necessary would be for Government to ordain total prohibition excepting to those now using the drug who, upon application, would be granted free permits renewable unconditionally from year to year (in order to keep a census of the licenced) for the remainder of their lives, such applications to be filed within a certain time after which no further application would be considered.

7. That the Anti-Opium Societies would be pleased to assist in the matter of the issue of permits, or entirely relieve the Government of trouble acting in conformity with the Government regulations and keeping in close touch with the Chinese Protectorate the while.

Whereof your petitioners pray that Your Honor may be pleased

THINGS WHICH KEEP YOU WELL

Wholesome food, sufficient exercise and sleep, and cleanliness of body inside as well as out are the chief essentials to good health. Pinkettes keep you clean and "fit" inside. Unionists Hold

First Conference

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

London, Oct. 25.—Thirteen hundred delegates are attending the Unionist Conference at Plymouth, the first since the breaking up of the Coalition.

The Conference today passed a resolution affirming that the welfare of the country depended on closer economic union within the Dominions, and stressing the vital importance of inter-Empire trade.

EXTRACT FROM EXPERT REPORT:

"Having visited most of the cement factories of Great Britain, America and Europe, I am in a position to form an opinion of the relative merits and faults of each..... but my experiences lead me to the conclusion that 'pride of place' must unquestionably be given to the Holderbank Factory in Switzerland..... In design and construction it is a model without rival in any country." W. H. Brown, A. M. I. Mech. E., leading authority in England on cement manufacturing.

The Wisdom of the ancient Sage and the technical experiences of a modern authority on cement manufacturing have guided us to install a set of machinery in our Lungwa Works which is an exact model of the one used by the Holderbank factory, Switzerland, and supplied by the original patentees with numerous latest improvements. The cement we are now supplying our customers is the product of that "perfect instrument."

League Union Is
Host To Premiers

(French Wireless through Reuter)

London, Oct. 25.—The League of Nations Union gave a dinner last night to the members of the Imperial Conference. Professor Gilbert Murray presided, and General Smuts, Mr. Bruce and the Maharajah of Alwar were present. Lord Robert Cecil, apologising for his absence, declared that the machinery of the League was sufficiently sound and that what was required was more popular support.

Opium Conference
To Be Held In July

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Oct. 25.—The League of Nations Council has provisionally decided to hold the first of the two conferences to deal with practical means for the carrying out of the Hague Opium Convention of 1912, next July. All States having territories in the Far East will be represented.

The second conference will be held immediately afterwards. The Council will decide at the next session whether all the members of the League will be invited to it or only the parties to the 1912 Convention.

Germany's Plight

THE progress of disintegration and disruption in Germany has now reached a stage where nobody in Germany, much less the rest of the world, can forecast the outcome. Most peoples as peoples follow and support subconsciously the general policy of their governments as against other governments. In the case of Germany, the general thought in the back of the people's heads was to get out of their defeat in war as cheaply as possible; in the case of the French, to make the Germans pay up as fully and as promptly as they could. The French have remained united in their purpose and are more fully united today probably than ever before. In Germany the underlying thought has been lost in the progressive domestic melee. So that as we have pointed out they are aimed in no general direction and are held together by no general policy.

A month or so ago the Communists who of course are striving to turn the whole country Bolshevist, appealed to Moscow for help. Their appeal was, to the surprise of the world, promptly and coldly turned down. But more recent dispatches indicate that the Soviet government is beginning to undergo a change of heart, and that a section at least of the Red Army is urging intervention in order to solve the whole problem in favor of the German Reds.

That is the situation today. Back of it lies the immediate past of kaleidoscopic changes, the Ruhr occupation, the passive resistance movement, the Separatist movement, the economic war, the intrigues of the Nationalists, the failure to pay on the part of Germany and the demand for payment by a united France.

It is obvious, that all this has made Europe's balance sheet a good deal worse for the protracted economic war has contributed to the impoverishment of all concerned. While Europe quarrels its debts steadily mount up, and this huge and almost hopeless accumulation is now the overshadowing problem.

How can Britain, much less the United States, help? The answer, we think, is that they should stand together and formulate a single, united policy of helpfulness in order to avert the impending catastrophe. And that, we believe, is what they are now trying to do.

Wonder whether that third party that is flirting with Senator La Follette is a blonde or a brunette?

Sometime ago Westa instituted a campaign for daylight saving. Judging from the responses Shanghaianders appear to think the Municipal Council has gone far enough in that direction already. Boy, page Joshua!

The S.S. Pronto has arrived in Shanghai from Germany. That's a good way to come.

REMARKABLE REMARKS

"All that is the matter with this world is injustice. Establish justice and everything will be alright."—Henry Ford.

"Gloom, gloom... more gloom!"—Sir Eric Geddes.

"Neither the Reparations Commission nor the League of Nations possesses sufficient authority to deal with the present European situation."—General Smuts.

"Any girl with a garlic-eating sweetheart is surely justified in resorting to garlic in return."—Henry W. Marshall.

Miss Ima Hoot Nanny, who always pays attention to such things, sez that Mr. Marshall very probably isn't aware of the fact that sweethearts eat garlic merely to kill the dark germs in modern kisses.

And Pa Jones, who has a friend who just returned from the States, sez that the American doctors who were in the habit of prescribing sea voyages are now looking around for something else with a 'kick' in it.

CHINESE POETRY

By Witter Bynner. Amy Lowell and Florence Ayscough with translation assistance by Foo Dung.

On the sixth day Of the seventh month Before the little slim moon like a lady finger Rises over the Yang-tze. The twelve little princesses in scarlet trousers And jade shoes with coral points turned exquisitely up. Go down to the river to fish for minnows. They carry little baskets of pale oisonglass Full of worms and gin. And as they pass under the cucumber trees They shake them for the drinks. How mincingly they tread the al-fa-fa Singing as they go, in delicate cricket voices.

The youngest grandmother in the world, aged 28, has just been discovered at New Castle, Pa. She may be in years but we've got some in Shanghai that have her skinned to death in spirit.

As Calvin Coolidge Thinks

The Fairest Government—History In Revelation—Democracy Builds Up

Below is the fourth article in a series being published in THE CHINA PRESS by President Calvin Coolidge. Today's article deals with the fundamentals of American Government, and is the conclusion of yesterday's article under the same heading. In THE SUNDAY CHINA PRESS a long article on the President's favorite subject—Citizenship and Law and Order—will appear.

THE FAIREST GOVERNMENT

We live under the fairest government on earth. But it is not self-sustaining. Nor is that all. There are selfishness and injustice and evil in the world. More than that, these forces are never at rest. Some desire to use the processes of government for their own ends. Some desire to destroy the authority of government altogether. Our institutions are predicated on the rights and the corresponding duties, on the worth of the individual. It is to him that we must look for safety. We may need new charters, new constitutions and new laws at times. We must always have an alert and interested citizenship. We have no dependence but the individual. New charters cannot save us. They may appear to help, but the chances are that the beneficial results obtained result from an increased interest aroused by discussing changes. Laws do not make reforms, reforms make laws. We cannot look to government. We must look to ourselves. We must stand not in the expectation of a reward but with a desire to serve.

Essay "On the Nature of Politics."

The eighteenth century was the era of the development of political rights. It was the culmination of the ideas of the Renaissance. It was the putting into practice in government of the answer to the long pondered and much discussed question, "What is right?" Custom was giving way at last to reason. Class and caste and place, all the distinctions based on appearance and accident were giving way before reality. Men turned from distinctions which were temporal to those which were eternal. The sovereignty of kings, and the nobility of peers was swallowed up in the sovereignty and nobility of all men. The unequal in quantity became equal in quality. The successful solution of this problem was the crowning glory of a century and a half of American history.

Banker Hill Day, 1918.

It established for all time how men ought to act toward each other in the governmental relation. The rule of the people had begun.

There has been much talk in recent years of the survival of the fittest and of efficiency. We are beginning to hear of the development of the superman and the claim that he has of right dominion over the rest of his inferiors on earth. This philosophy denies the doctrine of equality and holds that government is not based on consent but on compulsion. It holds that the weak must serve the strong, which is the law of slavery, it applies the law of the animal world to mankind and puts science above morals. This sounds the call to the jungle. It is not an advance to the morning but a retreat to night. It is not the light of human reason but the darkness of the wisdom of the serpent.

The law of progress and civilization is not the law of the jungle. It is not an earthly law, it is a divine law. It does not mean the survival of the fittest, it means the sacrifice of the fittest. Any mother will give her life for her child. Men put the women and children in the lifeboats before they themselves will leave the sinking ship. John Hampden and Nathan Hale did not survive, nor did Lincoln, but Benedict Arnold did. The example above all others takes us back to Jerusalem some nineteen hundred years ago. The men of Bunker Hill were true disciples of civilization, because they were willing to sacrifice themselves to resist the evils and redeem the liberties of the British Empire. The proud shaft which rises over their battlefield and the bronze form of Joseph Warren in your square are not monuments to expediency or success, they are monuments to righteousness.

Banker Hill Day, 1918.

Banker Hill Day, 1918.

attention that the individual shall be protected against whatever force may be brought against him. We believe in him not because of what he has, but what he is. But this is a practical faith. It does not rest on any silly assumption that virtue is the reward of anything but effort or that liberty can be secured at the price of anything but eternal vigilance.

Excerpt from Article Written for Sunday Advertiser and American, Sept. 1, 1918.

Let there be a purpose in all legislation to recognize the right of man to be well born, well nurtured, well educated, well employed and well paid. This is no gospel of ease or selfishness or class distinction but a gospel of effort and service, of universal application. Such results cannot be secured at once, but they should be ever before us. The world has assumed burdens that will bear heavily on all people. We shall not escape our share. But whatever may be our trials, however difficult our tasks, they are only the problems of peace, and a victorious peace. The war is over. Whatever the call of duty now we should remember with gratitude that it is nothing compared with the heavy sacrifice so lately made. The genius and fortitude which conquered them cannot now fail.

Inaugural Address as Governor, Jan. 2, 1919.

The doctrine of the Declaration of Independence predicated upon the glory of man, and the corresponding duty of society is that the rights of citizens are to be protected with every power and resource of the State, and a government that does any less is false to the teachings of that great document of the name American. Beyond this, the principle that it is the obligation of the people to rise and overthrow government which falls in these respects. But above all, the call to duty, the pledge of fortune and of life, nobility of character through nobility of action: this is Americanism.

"Woe for us if we forget, we that hold by these."

Herein are the teachings of this day—touching the heights of man's glory and the depths of man's duty. Here lies the path to national preservation, and there is no other. Education, the progress of science, commercial prosperity, yes, and peace, all these and their accompanying blessings are worthy and commendable objects of attainment. But these are not the end, whether these come or no; the end lies in action—action in accord with the eternal principles of the Declaration of Independence: the words of the Continental Congress, but the deeds of the army of the Revolution.

This is the meaning of America. And it is all our own. Doctrines and visionaries may shudder at it. The privilege of birth may jeer at it. The practical politician may scoff at it. But the people of the nation respond to it, and march away to Mexico to the rescue of a colored trooper as they marched of old to the rescue of an emperor. The assertion of human rights is naught but a call to human sacrifice. This is yet the spirit of the American people. Only so long as this flame burns shall we endure, and the light of liberty be shed over the nations of the earth. May the increase of the years increase for America only the devotion to this spirit, only the intensity of this flame, and the eternal truth of Lowell's lines:

"What were our lives, without thee?"

What all our lives to save thee We seek not what we gave thee; We will not dare to doubt thee,

As Calvin Coolidge Thinks

But ask whatever else and we will dare." HISTORY IS REVELATION. History is revelation. It is a manifestation in human affairs of a "power not ourselves that makes for righteousness." Savages have no history. It is the mark of civilisation.

July 4, 1776, was a day of history in its high and true significance. Not because the underlying principles set out in the Declaration of Independence were new; they are older than the Christian religion, or Greek philosophy, nor was it because history is made by proclamation or declaration; history is made only by action. But it was an historic day because the representatives of three millions of people there vocalised Concord and Lexington and Bunker Hill, which gave notice to the world that they were acting, and proposed to act, and to found an independent nation, on the theory that "all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." The wonder and glory of the American people is not the ringing declaration of that day, but the action, then already begun, and in the process of being carried out in spite of every obstacle that war could interpose, making the theory of freedom and equality a reality. We revere that day because it marks the beginnings of independence, the beginnings of a constitution that was finally to give universal freedom and equality to all American citizens, the beginnings of a Government that was to recognise beyond all others the power and worth and dignity of man. There began the first governments to acknowledge that it was founded on the sovereignty of the people. There the world first beheld the revelation of modern democracy.

DEMOCRACY BUILDS UP

Democracy is not a tearing down; it is a building up. It is not a denial of the divine right of kings; it supplements that claim with the assertion of the divine right of all men. It does not destroy; it fulfills. It is the consummation of all theories of government, to the spirit of which all the nations of the earth must yield. It is the great constructive force of the ages. It is the alpha and omega of man's relation to man, the beginning and the end. There is and can be no more doubt of the triumph of democracy in human affairs than there is of the triumph of gravitation in the physical world; the only question is how and when. Its foundation lays hold upon eternity.

These are some of the ideals that the founders of our institutions expressed, in part unconsciously, on that momentous day now passed by one hundred and forty years. They knew that ideals do not maintain themselves. They knew that they there declared a purpose which would be resisted by the forces, on land and sea, of the mightiest empire on earth. Without the resolution of the people of the Colonies to resort to arms, and without the guiding military genius of Washington, the Declaration of Independence would be naught in history but the vision of doctrinaires, a mockery of sounding brass and tinkling cymbal. Let us never forget that it was that resolution and that genius which made it the vitalising force of a great nation. It takes service and sacrifice to maintain ideals.

The Declaration of Independence was indeed a great document. It was drawn up by Thomas Jefferson when he was at this best. It was the product of men who seemed inspired. No greater company ever assembled to interpret the voice of the people or direct the destinies of a nation. The events of history may have added to it but subtracted nothing. Wisdom and experience have increased the admiration of it. Time and criticism have not shaken it. It stands with ordinance and law, charter and constitution, prophecy and revelation, whether we read them in the history of Babylon, the results of Runnymede, the Ten Commandments, or the Sermon on the Mount. But however worthy of our reverence and admiration, however preeminent, it was only one incident of a great forward movement of the human race of which the American Revolution was itself only a larger incident. It was not so much a struggle of the colonies against the tyranny of bad government as against wrong principles of government and for self-government. It was man realising himself. It was sovereignty from within which responded to the alarm of Paul Revere on that April night, and which went marching, gun in hand, against sovereignty from without wherever it was found on earth. It only passed at Concord, or Yorktown, then marched on to Paris, to London, to Moscow, to Peking. Against the powers of privilege and the forces of despotism could not prevail. Superstition and sham cannot stand before intelligence and reality. The light that first broke over the thirteen colonies lying along the Atlantic coast was destined to illuminate the world. It has been a struggle against the forces of darkness; victory has been and is still delayed in some quarters, but the result is not in doubt. All the forces of the universe are ranged on the side of democracy. It must prevail.

What Women Wear

A self-important hairdresser once declared and made many others believe that he and others of his calling really set the fashion.

A woman's hats must be made to suit and to fit her hair, hence the milliners must take their cue from the hair dressers, and a woman's frocks must be made to suit her hats. Shoes, gloves and other accessories then follow to suit the frock. The hairdresser leads the way.

True enough, hair arrangement and styles in millinery have a very close relationship—closer than many milliners and hairdressers realise. It's a modern version of the classic riddle: "Which came first, the egg or the chicken?"

Are our hats made to suit our hair, or do we arrange our hair to suit our hats? Who knows?

Since women have given up the bob and the near bob and the simulated bob many of them have resorted to the 1840 method of drawing the hair taut at the back and piling it in a chignon high at the back of the head. This has gained rather more following in France than in this country. It goes of course with the center part, also reminiscent of 1840.

Many women affect this high chignon only for evening wear. The low crowned hat takes on a curious tilt when you attempt to wear it over this high arrangement, so it may be that the increasing height to the crown of hats which is included in what milliners speak of as "one of the most outstanding features" of the new hats, has really come as a response to the demand for a hat that will accommodate the new high headdress.

With the increased height of the crown there seems to be a decrease in the width of the brim. The new helmet that is a result of this higher crown and narrow brim is not as generally becoming as the lower crowned hat of the early season—but it produces the illusion of smartness.

The hat in the sketch is of the helmet sort. It is of white suede, lined with green taffeta, and the suede is cut in a pattern to show the green lining beneath.

Conspicuous

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

A recent "comic" showed a scene in the wilds. A leopard, made to look rather humanly, swaggeringly conscious, is passing three staring zebras.

The striped beast in the foreground soliloquizes for the benefit of her fellow-jokes-of-nature in the background, saying: "Goeh, wouldn't I hate to be as conspicuous as that leopard's spots, make her!"

This writer is rather unimpressed regarding the inner workings of the zebra's mind. He is not sure that a zebra would dare to stand and stare at a passing leopard.

Not even if the odds were three to one. Indeed, he is inclined to doubt that a zebra—though all her world be addicted to stripes—would presume to indulge in spoken criticism of a solitary leopard's devotion to spots.

Perhaps she would have too much respect for the spotted feline's ability to "knock the spots" out of three specimens of overdecorated members of the equine family.

As a matter of fact, this writer's sympathies are wholly with the leopard in the picture, spots and all.

For has he not—the writer, not the leopard—chosen to wear a own style of neckwear or headgear.

Society's refusal to allow you self-indulgence, when you choose to think differently and to be different from the rest, is a more menacing matter than you think.

Then your difference is a challenge that must be met, lest society seem self-confident as wrong and your attitude accepted as at least possibly right.

It is not so long since the doughty agnostic, Robert G. Ingersoll, was regarded as not merely wrong but as a bad man because he dared to be known as a happy, eloquent agnostic.

He was conspicuous in his courage to be himself. Paine and Voltaire earlier had similarly challenged the orthodoxy of their time.

In still other days, the established order rid itself of those who dared to think, believe, speak "conspicuously." By making bonfires of them.

The great distinction of the Jew has always been that he has dared to be different and thereby conspicuous from earliest history up to date.

Make yourself conspicuous by being spotted when stripes are in style and you risk economic safety, social status, life itself.

And yet, nature has set its seal on infinite variety.

Human nature should similarly put a premium on that individuality which, for good and substantial reason, will risk being a bit conspicuous.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years, and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.

It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.

Save the Babies

Infant mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty-seven per cent., or more than one third, before they are five, and one half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

Narrow Wheeled Handcarts Are Fading Away

For some time past, attention has been given to the necessity of removing from the streets the old narrow wheeled handcarts which cause heavy damage to road surfaces. Direct prohibition of their use has not been resorted to, since this would have inflicted pecuniary hardship upon handcart owners and entailed more or less dislocation of their business.

In order, therefore, to discourage the use of the old and objectionable type of handcart the policy was adopted of reducing the licence fee in the case of handcarts fitted with a tyre of 3-ins. or more in diameter. The success attending this policy was attested by the figures published in the Gazette of June 22, 1922, which showed that whereas in May 1921, there were 1,609 handcarts of the old type, as against one of the standard 3-ins. type, the number of the old type had fallen by December 1921, to 1338, whilst the new type had increased in number to 1815. Since July 1, this year, the licence fees were altered, and payment was required to be made quarterly instead of monthly, viz. 2s. 6d. per quarter for handcarts fitted with tyres of 3 inches and over in width, and 1s. 9d. per quarter for handcarts fitted with tyres less than 3 inches in width.

This policy continues to give satisfactory results and the latest return of the numbers of each class of handcarts, received on October 5, discloses the fact that there are now only 127 licences issued in respect of the old narrow wheeled handcarts, as against 2109 of the standard type.

Will Improve Conditions Of Garbage Removal

The dumping of garbage into the Spohow Creek from the boats employed by the Contractors has been the subject of much consideration, with a view to keeping the creek clear of refuse, and to preventing the rapid silting to which this waterway is liable according to the Municipal Gazette. To this end, an appropriation for a motor patrol boat for supervision purposes will be made in the Budget for next year, in the sum of Tls. 6,600.

A certain amount of garbage, stacked above the freeboard of the boat, is split at the dumping stations. Whilst the existing type of boat will be retained for the present, for reasons of economy, it is considered desirable that the boats be built up at the sides. These wooden sides, to which a tarpaulin cover can be fitted, are estimated to cost Tls. 70 and Tls. 55 for large and small boats respectively, and it is proposed to make these fittings a condition of the next contract for removal of garbage.

Report Foreign Advisors To Be Dismissed

The posts of foreigners who have served the Chinese Government in one way or another are in danger according to the Chinese papers. It is reported that in a move to lessen Governmental expenses, fully 10,000 employees are to be dismissed. It has been suggested that all foreigners whose positions are not made secure by international agreements and who were appointed after the Third Year of the Republic, be dismissed.

French Take Full Control In Syria

(French Wireless through Reuter) Paris, Oct. 25.—The French High Commissioner in Syria has announced that the capitulations granted to foreign powers in Syria will cease from November 1, the French mandate over Syria and the Lebanon having been ratified. Jurisdiction is being maintained until the establishment of mixed tribunals which will be opened shortly for nationals of the Powers that enjoyed capitulations.

Socialists Win Austrian Election

(French Wireless through Reuter) Paris, Oct. 25.—According to the newspapers, the following are the complete results of the elections to the Austrian National Council:—

Christian Socialists 81 seats.

Social Democrats 67 seats.

Pan-Germans 10 seats.

Peasants' Party 7 seats.

The National Council will meet on November 30.

'Y' Secretary In Tokyo Still Missing

Tokio, October 21.—The whereabouts of Mr. Wang Shi-tien, Secretary of the Chinese Y.M.C.A. in Tokio and Superintendent of Students studying in Japan, who is missing in consequence of the earthquake congestion remains unknown. The Chinese Legation in Tokio, in a formal Note, asked the Foreign Office to search for him, yesterday.

The Chinese Legation is busy occupied in undertaking searches for missing Chinese in Tokio, in response to application from their families at home.

Rebels In Greece Facing Blockade

(French Wireless through Reuter) Paris, Oct. 25.—According to a telegram from Athens from a Government source the counter-revolutionary movement appears to have been checked in continental Greece and in Macedonia except in the district north of Salonika. The Peloponnese is blockaded by the fleet of the Government-General, but the commander is resisting. Demonstrations by Government troops are anticipated in the direction of Corinth. At Athens Colonel Gonatas and Colonel Plastiras declare their intention of striking without mercy against the originators of the trouble.

GOOD HARVEST IS GATHERED IN SHANTUNG

Chefoo-Weihien Motor Service Shows Great Improvement

(China Press Correspondence)

Hwanghsien, Shantung, Oct. 17.—The autumn harvest is still in full blast in the eastern part of Shantung province. The harvest has been exceedingly good with a possible exception of soy beans, which were a bit late to mature thoroughly. The corn was a good bit late this season on account of the continued drought during a part of July.

At that time the Chinese feared that the crops would be seriously damaged, but at the time of the harvest there was a full crop gathered. The autumn wheat planting is being held up by a rather serious drought at the present time. It has not rained for some weeks and the ground is very dry. In spite of the good crops the prices of grain and other commodities continue to rise, making living difficult for those who are paid in copper. The silver dollar continues to advance in price and will soon be up to the high mark of 4,000 king cash.

TRANSPORT IMPROVES

The service on the Chefoo-Weihien Motor Line continues to improve. It has been in operation a little over a year now from Hwanghsien to Weihien, and in the spring of this year the line was extended through to Chefoo. There is a regular schedule with two trains of cars east and west daily. One of these is a light car and the other is an express. In each train there is room for from 15 to 20 passengers and the only fly in the ointment at present is that seats are not always available. Cars leave Chefoo and Weihien respectively at about 6.00 a.m. and arrive Weihien and Chefoo respectively at 6.10 p.m.

The people in Hwanghsien are happy over the coming of Miss Mary Lawton to our midst from Cheng Chow in Honan. Her father is a missionary of the Southern Baptist Mission of Honan.

Miss Kathleen Mallory, the Secretary of the W. M. U. of the Southern Baptist Convention of America will soon be in our midst. She is visiting stations of the Southern Baptists in China and Japan to get some first-hand information and inspiration to take back to the Women's Missionary Union of the Southland. She will go on to Tientsin, where she will attend the Meeting of the Shantung Baptist Association and W. M. U. which begins on the 13th of November. This Association comprises work in five provinces, namely Shantung, Shanai and the three Eastern Provinces of Manchuria, and in many centers of Shantung.

Our New German-Made Behemoth of the Air

A Pictorial Presentation of the Gigantic ZR-3, of the United States Navy, Inside of Which the Largest Steamship Afloat Could Be Completely Hidden

A ship inside which the world's largest liner could be completely hidden—that is the latest, and distinctly the greatest, feat of the United States Navy, plus the aid of a German construction company!

People who are old enough to remember, and to have marveled at, the first crude native attempts at aviation have a shock coming to them when they view the ZR-3, the new behemoth of the air, literally "monarch of all she surveys."

For the ZR-3 is to the old-fashioned gas bags what a drop of water is to Niagara Falls—a Titan contrasted with a swat!

Comparative Diagram of the ZR-3 and the Majestic, Which Measures 956 Feet from Bow to Stern.

And the details of her intricate inner system, as indicated in the accompanying drawing, are no less complex than her proportions and power are astonishing.

Just to get a rough idea of the ZR-3's size, suppose that you were an infant giant—you might scan the ocean with a sharp glance and pick out the steamship Majestic, as a sizeable plaything. Then you would notice the ZR-3.

If you liked, you could snatch up the Majestic from sea or drydock with one lift, and with the other grab the ZR-3. Tearing the aerial greyhound in half, you could next insert the Majestic into her "innards" and then clap over the projecting prow the other half of the great airship. And it would not be such a tight fit, either!

This may sound incredible, but statistics will prove it. The Majestic's length is 956 feet; her breadth is 100 feet, and her depth, from boat-deck to keel, is 102 feet. The ZR-3 is 985 feet long and 131 feet deep at her central diameter. She has a breadth of about 125 feet. So, you see, the monster of the deep could be more than neatly fitted into the monster of the skies—with plenty of "breathing-space" left over!

The American Navy is proud—and justly—of her most recent step child, for Germany must be given the actual credit for the workmanship. The foreign company which undertook the colossal job is the Luftschiffbau Zeppelin Gesellschaft, which is to say the Zeppelin Airship Construction Company. The scene of the construction was a secluded spot—though that seems rather a meagre word for so vast a project—on the shores of Lake Constance.

Lake Constance, as you can see by scrutinizing any map of Germany, is quite a large, irregularly shaped body of water in the southern part of that country. It is just across the border from what are known as the Alps of Algaun, and the surrounding territory is not thickly populated.

As a matter of fact, the Germans probably chose this spot—Friedrichshafen is the unwieldy name of the town where the ZR-3 was built—for its seclusion. At all events, the Zeppelin Airship Construction Company, which has been declared by travelers who have seen it to be unsurpassed in technical equipment and natural facilities.

It was at this very manufactory that the Germans built their famous Zep.

But they never attempted anything so stupendous as the ZR-3, which demands skilled and manifold manipulation. Indeed, thirty men are required to man her. These include expert air navigators of the United States, who supervised the work from the start.

The ZR-3 is held aloft with hydrogen gas bags of 70,000 cubic meters. Passenger apartments on the craft were modeled after the latest luxury that ingenuity could devise. There are neat and comfortable berths, an efficiently appointed and spotless kitchen, with real electric stoves, and even an adequate butler's pantry.

Five Maybach motors—the last word in German driving energy—propel the ZR-3. Its hold has a capacity of thirty-three tons of gasoline. In addition, gigantic ballast is provided for. There is ample room for drinking water and all the necessary food supplies.

But it is the speed-ability, rather than the mere eating-drinking-and-sleeping comfort, which makes the ZR-3 notable. She can attain, say her engineers, 80 miles an hour, and the trip between Friedrichshafen and New York City can be negotiated in 75 hours. This amounts to 3 1/2 days, decidedly a swifter voyage than one could achieve, for example, on the speedy Majestic or speedier Lincolnton.

An air monster similar to that which Germany has created for us is the ZR-1, a sister ship of the ZR-3. The former, however, came into being, not abroad, but in New Jersey. The stupendous frames, pictured on this page, were assembled at the Lakehurst Naval Station.

It may be written down as a significant bit of aviation history that every precaution was taken to prevent any accidents similar to that which befell the British-built ZR-2, when the River Hull—every one will recall—was the scene of one of the world's most horrible tragedies. All supports on both the ZR-1 and the ZR-3 have been doubly secured; their ribs are of the toughest and most costly steel, and the linen which covers the frames, put on by hundreds of workmen, was chemically treated to render it impervious to weather.

Despite their "relationship," the ZR-3 has it "all over" the ZR-1 for size, at least. The latter is "only" 673 feet long and 78 feet wide. So until some genius comes along and constructs a rival Zep larger than the newest sky-cruiser, the ZR-3 will proudly hold her unofficial, if legitimate, title—the "Empress of the Clouds."

Fall Frocks

THE well-dressed woman should always be prepared with a few well-chosen costumes for the first crisp days of Fall. If she is familiar with those subtle signs which characterize a frock as new or out-of-date, her selections, made now, will comply with Fashion's dictate later. Here are illustrated a number of models for early Autumn, which are forerunners of the modes to follow. They have been culled from a variety of styles to meet the wardrobe needs of Missy during her first week or so of cool weather in town.

THE sudden possible intrusion of a crisp day upon the waning warmth of Summer brings to mind the necessity of a new wardrobe. But the first offerings of the Fall may mislead us, unless we determine just what will later brand a frock as new or out-of-date. The diagonal line will mark the trimming of many of the newer models. No more charming development of its basic idea could be found than the swirl drape of the well walking costume herewith illustrated. Bias bands of satin allow their lustrous beauty to be emphasized with bands of braid just beneath.

The skirt of this model is fashioned in flare effect, and catches its circular swirl at the front with a colorful cabuchon. An interesting cuff shows braid trimming which matches that of the skirt, and which offers a more snug cuff beneath the flare for windy weather. Small and mushroom-shaped is the hat worn, in perfect taste, with this simple frock. The color unity of the complete costume is effectively broken with the gay parrot-tail which swings jauntily from one side of the hat.

Another frock boasts the diagonal line, this time showing it only in the termination of the narrow braid which runs across the bodice, skirt, pockets and cuffs. The design is repeated in the hat trimming; one of the notable style features of the coming season. Aside from this unusual placement of decoration, the wool frock proves that we have not yet relinquished the straight line model, with its plain string girdle.

We may select the one-piece frock for our first Fall wardrobe requirement, or we may choose the two-piece knitted suit with equally good judgment. The knitted suit illustrated may be worn to informal affairs in town, as well as on the golf course. Its contrasting lapels are merely the knitted material reversed, and the cuffs demand only this simple trimming, too. Silk braid outlines the jacket and is used, in keeping with the new dictate, on the lower edge of the knitted skirt.

We are offered a host of charming knitted things from which to select our informal attire this Fall, and the college girl is not passing by their practical possibilities.

There is the knitted three-piece suit, whose under frock and bodice are in one length, and which is given sleeves and collar with the addition of a sheer silk blouse. The jacket may be removed during class and slipped on again during those cool days on the campus.

There are the knitted mosaic designs used as bandings for skirt hems and the brilliant, bizarre colorings which seem to have been made only to be knitted into these fascinating new costumes.

Wool or silk are among the prominent offerings at the smart shops, and the girl who attains that fashionable appearance of chic is not overlooking the attractiveness of these new colorful costumes. Our natural love of barbaric color sends us to bright jewelry, and we are offered some charming novelties to be worn with our first Fall frocks. A chain of brilliantly-hued wood beads, a pair of crudely-cut jade earrings, and perhaps a metal motif or two on the frock, are in keeping with the general tendency of the period. On the other hand, the girl still in her teens would do well to select the simpler sort of clothes as, for instance, the tailored jacket and skirt of camel's hair cloth.

Torn from Throne and Fortune, the Last

the accepted story of the diamond's history. She presented as her chief advocate Professor Joseph D'Ancona, expert in matters historical and genealogical.

"I have evidence," deposed Professor D'Ancona, "that the Florentine diamond was, and is, the exclusive property of the Medici family."

The Florentine, he declared, first appeared in legend in the ring of Carl the Foolhardy, and by him was bequeathed to that Duke of Burgundy whose naked body, half eaten by wolves, was found beneath the walls of the city of Nancy. A peasant took the ring. After various adventures, states Professor D'Ancona, the ring fell into the possession of Ferdinand Medici and by him was carried to Rome. It was part of the collection left by Anna Maria Medici in her will.

"The diamond properly belongs to descendants of the Medici family," declares Professor D'Ancona. "Austria took it out of Italy by force of arms. This was sheer robbery. Emperor Karl claimed the jewel was his because it was the personal property of the Hapsburg family. By the same token, the Medicis, branding the Hapsburgs as robbers, claim the diamond to-day."

Simonetta Medici, a beauty, asserts she can prove her direct descent from Lorenzo the Magnificent, greatest of the Medici dukes. She is the last of the family alive in Italy, she claims. And she appeals to her government, which in turn, serves notice on Queen Zita that she must not seek to dispose of the diamond in any way until it is wrested from her.

Were it not for her desperate plight which makes money essential, Queen Zita might well wish herself rid of the Florentine. For it, like the Hope diamond, the Orloff diamond, the Great Mogul and other famous gems, has a Signorina Simonetta Medici, the Italian Beauty Who Claims to Be the Last of the Medici and Rightful Owner of the Florentine Diamond.

FIRE, which destroyed her last refuge, and a grasping beauty, who would seize her last prop against starvation—these are the newest double blows of Fate in the crown-cursed career of Zita, once queen of an empire and mistress of uncounted millions, to-day a pauperized widow and mother with hopes less bright than those of the humblest of her erstwhile subjects.

When flames swept the Riviera forests this summer, razing the Mandelieu estate of Zita in their red path, and when Signorina Simonetta Medici served notice on the government of Italy that she could prove her title to the famous Florentine diamond, ex-queen Zita must have raised pitiful hands to heaven and cried:

"Deliver me—by death if necessary—from this Hapsburg scourge!"

Consider what a chain of calamities—defeat, flight, imprisonment, exile, grief of widowhood, pain of childbirth, robbery climaxed by greed and fire—have been Zita's inheritance from the crimson crown of Austria since her throne toppled at the end of the World War.

The victory of the Allies deprived Emperor Karl and his family of the kingdom his house had ruled since the thirteenth century. The sceptre which a Hapsburg had held through more than six hundred years of blood and intrigue vanished. But its curse remained.

Karl's attempt to regain his throne—when he and Zita flew in an airplane to Burgenland in the Autumn of 1921, only to find the royalist revolt had been crushed before their arrival—was Fate's second thrust.

Then came Karl's exile, with his family, to Madeira. Then his death, from cold and lack of food. Then the birth of his posthumous child, youngest of seven left in Zita's care. Then another crushing stroke—Zita, trying to dispose of the Austrian crown jewels through Swiss dealers, was swindled out of the greater part of a gigantic treasure valued at more than thirty thousand gold crowns, or $6,000,000 in American money!

Out of all that glittering plunder accumulated from every quarter of the world by emperors of Austria and kings of Hungary—pink diamonds, gem-encrusted coronation mantles, sandals embroidered with emeralds, crosses set with rubies and pearls, the imperial crown studded with jewels of ancient Rome—Zita saved nothing but a few baubles.

Of these the most valuable was the gorgeous Florentine diamond. The stone is one of the gem marvels of the world. It weighs 139½ carats. A pale yellow, amazingly faceted, its blazing beauty so excites the cupidity of all who gaze upon it that its owners always have feared to wear it.

The Florentine is appraised at more

In the insignia of the Order of the Golden Fleece. He wore it in war as he did in peace. And, on the battlefield of Granson, when he and his troops fled in panic, the diamond in some manner was knocked from its setting. A Swiss halberdier, combing the battlefield for loot, found it, and sold it to a priest for one florin.

The priest in turn sold the Florentine to a Bernese merchant. The price is reputed to have been a sum equivalent to $25 in American money. Eventually the diamond found its way into the hands of a Genoese dealer, who was the first, after its loss, to identify it as the Florentine.

Don Ludovico Sforza, Duke of Milan, was the next owner of the Florentine. He presented it to Pope Julius II, who in turn made a gift of it to Grand Duke Francis of Tuscany. It was Francis who married Empress Maria Theresa of Austria, and thus, according to the Hapsburg account, the Florentine became the personal property of that house.

But when Signorina Simonetta Medici came forward, supported by her government, to try to prevent the last of the Hapsburgs from disposing of the Florentine, she disputed than half a million dollars in American coinage. While Queen Zita knew she could not sell it for half of this sum, even could she find a bidder, she could use the stone as collateral for a loan large enough to support herself and children for years.

In brief, the Florentine diamond was the last barrier standing between the ex-empress and actual poverty.

Zita opened negotiations with Paris brokers. She had arranged for the placement of the diamond as security for the loan when, out of a clear sky, came a bolt. The Italian Government raised its voice in bitter protest to the Allies. The diamond, said the Italian Government, was the property of Italy. And to prove it, here was Signorina Simonetta Medici, who claimed the Florentine for her very own!

The claim, based on the statement that Simonetta de Medici was the lineal descendant of the famous Italian house which for two centuries gave grand dukes to Florence, opened up the entire question of the Florentine diamond's history—a history stained with gore and muffled in the mists of legends.

Heretofore the accepted story of the Florentine diamond was that it became the property of the Hapsburgs legitimately through marriage. According to this account, the Florentine first emerges in legendary history out of the mystic East as the property of Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy. Charles, a vain man, wore it blazing world-wide reputation for misfortune. It is said of the Hope diamond that woe befalls all who own it. Certainly tragedy has always followed in its train. Tavernier, who brought it from India, failed in business and died. Madame de Montespan, upon whom the Grand Monarque bestowed it, was supplanted in the king's affections by her rival, Madame de Maintenon. Nicholas Fouquet, a courtier who borrowed it, was executed. Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette, who inherited it, died on the guillotine. So the tale of death went, until, Lord Francis Hope, who eventually bought the diamond, became a bankrupt. His wife, May Hope, eloped with another man. As late as a few years ago the Hope diamond was bringing sorrow to its last owner, Edward B. McLean. Soon after he acquired it, his little son was killed by an automobile. About the Florentine diamond, clusters such another series of fateful episodes from the murder of the Duke of Burgundy to the death of Emperor Karl. Zita, owning it, has seen her empire fall, her husband die, her children threatened by hunger and disease, her only home on earth burnt to the last timber. The diamond, with its baleful gleam, is at once her most cherished possession and, at the same time, symbol of the Hapsburg curse which seems destined to hound her to her very death.

SHANGHAI, SUN DAY, OCTOBER 28, 1923

"The cost of car operation is frequently shared in various ways. Thus if more than one member of a family is employed in the town or city, the actual cost of "commutation by car" may not much exceed the former expenditure for railroad fare. In other cases, workers living in the same locality frequently share the expense of the daily trip, either by actual cash payment, by the use

There'll be some funny tales about four wheel brakes now that they are on the market for the use of all, says a writer in Motor. I well remember my first experience riding in a gasoline wagon thus equipped. It was two years ago. Jimmy Murphy was skipping me over the rough streets of Indianapolis. We were headed straight for the rear of a painter's truck with long ladders protruding. Jimmy never slackened his pace. I nervously waited out of respect for his ability as a pilot till he got the radiator of Detroit—Announcement was made by H. H. Rice, president and general manager of the Cadillac Motor Car company, of a new car, the V-63, equipped with a new V-type, 90-degree, eight-cylinder engine, harmonized and balanced by entirely new principles of design.

The car reveals many other fundamental improvements in chassis and bodies to be shown for the first time. Cadillac engineers consider the new engine the most important contribution to motor car progress since the introduction by Cadillac of the first V-eight in 1914. A Cadillac system of mechanically-operated, four-wheel brakes and new bodies of exceptional comfort and graceful lines are other leading features. The factory is producing the new models on a large schedule and deliveries will be made immediately.

There are two chief obstacles greater will be the demand for cement for the purpose of road building, of national high roads. Road building is not feasible for the time being. Herein lies the greatest immediate hope of the Chinese central government over the provinces is not well enough set up and made active through the Government at Peking, on account of the instability and poverty of the provinces, and the result would be a waste of the funds thus made available. Under the Consortium of foreign manufacturers, especially motor car manufacturers, the Chinese Government could insure the continuation of road building by the Chinese Government, once the latter is able to make loans to the Chinese Government great progress in the establishment.

Cables: "PNEUMATIC"

Japan Concentrating On Aircraft Development

By J. H. W. KERSTON

The sense of the importance of aircraft in peace and war has been growing on the Japanese people since the World War. During the war their cleverest officers were assigned to the European front as observers. They saw everything. They were among the first to enter Germany after the armistice. Japanese experts at the Peace Conference kept watchful eyes on the enemy property. They were most watchful of submarines and aircraft. They claimed full measure of the latest war devices. In other words, they saw it that when the surrendered materials were apportioned among the victors they could take home anything that was new. And they did. For did they destroy the property once it reached Japan. That which they could not afford to transport from Germany in bulk was cut up into pieces, a sample of everything was saved, and these were packed up and shipped to Japan.

While the shipbuilders were brooding over the slump in commercial shipping the Tokio Government was sending its marine experts to Europe to learn as much about aircraft as they knew concerning surface vessels. Students were assigned to engineering courses in the schools of every civilized country, with instructions to enter all courses in aviation wherever possible. In many American colleges courses in aeronautical engineering were unheard of until quiet Japanese students inquired regarding the possibility of entering such classes.

Others came to America—naval and army officers, expert navigators and technicians. They came frankly and full of confidence in their ability to study and learn the new art of the air. Before the Peace Treaty had been signed hundreds of Japanese merchants and professional men were at work on reports of what other governments were doing and what they might be expected to do in the future—say, in five or ten years. They smiled when refused admittance to American aircraft factories without authority from Washington. They would take passage for Europe.

On one occasion American builders went out in the open market to buy hardwood supplies with which to complete a large order for military planes. They found the supply had been contracted for by the Japanese. Almost overnight they had effected an organization which could procure materials and estimate complete requirements for an air fleet. Commercial correspondents and attaches throughout the world were set to work on arrangements for securing any or all of the fifty different materials which enter into aircraft construction. Two years ago the Japanese people were so varied in the potentialities of aviation that the politicians made much capital of it. All aviation was then under the jurisdiction of the Japanese war department.

Japan's awakening, naturally, has not remained unnoticed by persons and interests connected with aviation in America. Apparently it has escaped the notice of our politicians and a number of our writers who are still penning brilliant essays about surface craft and the beneficent results of the arms limitation conference. To discuss world armaments without thorough consideration of the aerial arm is patently absurd. Yet our American essayists are doing it. Their ignorance might be excusable if Japan were at all secretive about her aviation plans, which she is not. The Tokio Government is so more cautious about the aerial program than about shipbuilding.

The Japanese have, however, taken a valuable hint from the French. They do not boast of their prowess in the air. Today France is the most powerful nation on earth because she has maintained and developed an air force almost equal to those of all other nations combined. She justifies her exultation by pointing to Germany and the aircraft decisions of the Washington conference which received little publicity in this country. The delegates concluded, with the able assistance of aircraft experts from every country, that anything that was easily convertible for offensive or defensive purposes.

They declined to limit the construction of aircraft or to hamper aerial development in any way because to do so would destroy the most modern means of transport—the commercial aerial carrier. Today in France, air transport is generally subsidized by the Government. The commercial and sport planes and the bombers light bombardment and fast-fighting machines are kindred types, easily transformed in a day or night.

This being so, the Japanese negotiators could go home rejoicing in the new plan of empire which had been set in motion years before. They could relieve the burden of heavy armament by replacing battleships with battle planes. More than a thousand planes can be built for the cost of one battleship. Moreover, in peace time a battle plane and the personnel to maintain and operate it can be used for peaceful purposes. The factories making commercial aircraft and the skilled workers already becoming more skilled, more expert as the engineers progress in the art of design and construction—these elements form the organized reserve for war and pay their way as they go.

And Japan has been open and aboveboard about it all. If official reports are true, and they have not been contradicted, Japan is observing to the letter the terms of the limitations treaty. True, she is building an extraordinary number of auxiliary surface craft, cruisers and submarines. But that is according to Hoyle, in a manner of speaking.

Four years ago, when the Japanese government first set out to develop her air power, she approached American constructors on the possibility of providing her with certain specified types of military and naval aircraft. The negotiations got no farther than the approach, because American builders then had little or nothing to sell. What they had was at the disposal of the American forces. There was no way to provide foreign nations with our machines.

It might have been far better had the American Government plunged in and helped the industry develop the Japanese market; for then we should have had an outlet for our surplus.

And America could have sold Japan only what she desired to sell. Machines were being developed so rapidly that what was new today was obsolete tomorrow. Japan's American-built airplanes might have been compared to last year's birds' nests, had she received them. But she did not. The Liberty engine, which was not so perfect as it might have been—and is not now for that matter—was barred from export, though about 40,000 were lying about our wartime air supply depots waiting—for

Other Liberty engines have since been so improved that they are more efficient and dependable, though for many classes of fighting craft, such as pursuit planes, there are other recently developed American motors far superior. Thus we might have had much of our surplus material on

Japan's rising young air fleet and been no loser in the end. England, France, Italy and Germany held no such scruples. The British first sent a naval mission to Japan—a sort of advisory mission which resulted in friendship and technical knowledge for the Japanese. A significant result was that close on their heels came a group of British aircraft constructors, unofficially, of course, but none the less responsible. For they included at least two famed aircraft designers and hundreds of experts and engineers, mechanics and pilots. They set about training the Japanese who immediately bought 200 planes and paid $150,000 for the rights to manufacture. Along with airplanes they also acquired dirigible airships. At this juncture word permeated other countries that the Japanese make poor aviators. It was said that there was something about their sense of balance which caused them to lose their horizon; that their best tricks lay in landing with a series of "graceful leaps and bounds"—a term, by the way, first applied to our own aviators' training early in the war. It was said in England that the report had been credited to the British instructors to cause trouble and unfriendly feeling by whom none seemed to know.

A COMPLETE LINE OF 30 x 3 1/2 TYRES

The Goodyear line of 30 x 3 1/2 tyres is now complete.

It is doubtful if any manufacturer produces a stock either better or more complete in every detail.

There is a type to satisfy all the varying needs of the many users of Goodyear Tyres.

The Goodyear 30 x 3 1/2 Beaded Edge Wingfoot Fabric Tyre (Figure 1) is made of the same high grade cotton and rubber which are used in the Goodyear All-Weather Tread Tyres. Yet it is available at a remarkably low price.

The Goodyear 30 x 3 1/2 Beaded Edge All-Weather Tread Fabric Tyre (Figure 2) is a two-cure tyre with the traction qualities that has made the All-Weather Tread famous the world over. Due largely to its ability to give such excellent service, it is one of the most popular and largest selling brands on the market.

The new Goodyear 30 x 3 1/2 oversize All-Weather Tread Cord Tyre (Figure 3) made of six plies of excellent core fabric, is now ready for the market.

The tread and side walls of this tyre are approximately 20% heavier than any other light car tyre on the market.

It has the special Goodyear group ply construction and a greatly increased air capacity.

It is designed for heavy duty in the small size field.

The Goodyear Wingfoot Cord tyre (Figure 4) made in both the Beaded Tread and Straight Side types is designed primarily for those light car owners who prefer to sacrifice to some extent the anti-skid qualities of the Goodyear All-Weather Tread, and yet want a cord tyre at lower price.

The Goodyear Beaded Edge Cord Tyre with the new Beveled All-Weather Tread (Figure 5) has such wonderful riding qualities and gives such long mileage that many people prefer it, though slightly higher in its initial cost.

All these Goodyear Tyres are built under the same control and with the same skilled labor, the same numerous inspections and of the best quality materials obtainable.

They will all give uniformly satisfactory service.

Highways Are Leaders Of Civilization—R. D. Chapin

(From a speech by Roy D. Chapin, representing the automobile industry in his capacity of vice president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, at the dedication of the Zero Milestone Monument at Washington, D. C., which marks the beginning of the Robert E. Lee Highway and the hub of the national roads leading from Washington. The monument was accepted for the government by President Harding from Dr. S. M. Johnson, general director of the Lee Highway Association.)

Time was when all roads led to Rome. The world moves westward—civilization follows the same pathway and today we dedicate this visible mark of a new era when all roads lead to Washington. From this zero milestone will radiate to the homes in America improved highways over which will pass daily millions of our people and a vast proportion of our commerce.

Through the ages the upward struggle of man has been energized by the desire to express himself, to break loose from the past, to assert his individualism. In the last twenty years a new tool has been forged—a means of transport which more than ever before satisfies men's desires.

For the first time in history, man finds himself with a means of quick, economical, individual transportation. Every home has itself become a zero milestone from the door of which one may go in his car—one mile, five or five thousand, where one pleases, when one wishes. Each trip, long or short, is a zestful voyage of discovery.

Thus our whole mode of life has changed; we spread, we radiate, our horizon is now limitless. County and town are closely linked and each knows more of the other. Our friendships are broader; we substitute nationalism for sectionalism.

It is appropriate that this marker of the hub of the American highway system should be located at our capital—named for the one who brought this nationalism about. Just north of it stands Gettysburg. From there, running eastward to the Atlantic and westward to the Pacific, is the Lincoln Way, an everlasting memorial to him who abhorred sectionalism and who kept united for posterity this great nation of ours.

From here, lying the North and South together, runs the Lee highway. What more fitting than it should be named for that great soldier who ever will hold our respect and admiration.

No other nation makes its roads serve as many people as well as ours. The highway is now an intimate part of our life. We use it and appreciate it as never before. Let us all seek to understand its manifold influences upon our citizenship, mold it for the greater benefit of all, build it for our children's children, beautify it, guide it straight.

Billions will be expended on our roads in our lifetime, that highway transport may adequately serve us. Partly from economic, but more largely from human reasons, we must all give pause and study this newly powerful agent of marching civilization.

The Lincoln and Lee highway are part of a vast network of roads of which this zero milestone may be the heart and they the veins and arteries. Along these pulses the life blood of the nation. On them humanity moves to its destiny.

And thus we dedicate here today a true milestone of progress. Let after this granite clift is gone, these flowing ribbons of communication will carry man onward, outward, always forward.

fields and those already established, all aviators in the Government service are scheduled to make long cross-country flights. Each week whole units fly over the empire both for training and to accustom the people to aerial travel.

The government program calls for 100 to 150 new pilots every year—approximately the same number turned out in this country, though there would be more if our air chiefs had their way in the matter and were not limited by a cut-throat army bill. While our pilots are being forced out of the service because of slow promotions, with many demotions and no hope for the future Japan's pilots are maintained with full service privileges, and more. In fact, instead of discouraging new applicants, she is making possible more rapid advancement in the air service than in the land or sea forces. With their other work, fliers are doing police duty in Formosa, as our Marine Corps aviators often do police duty in the tropics.

The naval aviation bureau is offering large prizes to stimulate Japanese airplane design. It was not many years ago that their planes were primitive, to say the least. Last year, during maneuvers, each unit had its full quota of observation, pursuit, and bombing planes. The machines were as good as those of our own factories, which are located near main army concentration camps. They include the plants of the Mitsubishi Motor Company, a regular Nagoya, producing a new type; the Aichi Clock and Electric Machinery Company, Ltd., with a capacity of fifty planes a month; and the Kawasaki Works at Kobe, which is now erecting air plane factories in the Gifu prefecture.

Last summer the air forces had the Akita biplane with a German Maybach engine; the Mitsubishi single-seater fighter, showing the French Breguet influence; the Kawasaki three-seater biplane with a Maybach motor and very similar to the German L. V. G. observation machine; and the Shirato biplane, known in Japan as a sport or commercial model, though even the uninitiated would recognize it as a fast pursuit plane not unlike a French Spad.

For the past year, as often as the weather permitted, a regular Mitsubishi Motor Company, a regular Nagoya, producing a new type; the Aichi Clock and Electric Machinery Company, Ltd., with a capacity of fifty planes a month; and the Kawasaki Works at Kobe, which is now erecting air monstrated their ability to negotiate long distances; say within five years, the commercial traveler and the erstwhile naval strategist alike will find that Hawaii and the Aleutian Island of Alaska are equidistant from the United States and the Japanese air bases. The same applies to Hawaii and the Carolines. West of Hawaii Japan has remarkable opportunities for developing aerial routes which will enable her to transport passengers, products, or troops.

Tule Lake Now In Dry Column: U. S. To B'ame

Klamath Falls, Oregon, October 10.—Tule Lake, only a few years ago so wet it covered more than 100 square miles, has just gone over to the dry column.

Tule Lake reached its maximum size about twenty years ago, covering at that time the area where Malin is now located and reaching almost to the town of Merced. Its size was increasing by the flow of Lost River and also of part of the Klamath River during periods of high water.

The United States reclamation service first checked the inflow from the Klamath and then proceeded to divert Lost River into the Klamath, thus cutting off all but the smaller streams from the lake. Evaporation and seepage have done the rest.

The evaporation has exposed thousands of acres of rich land which is rapidly being placed under irrigation with the accompanying drainage system, the work being done by the reclamation service.

The Bok Peace Award

BY DAVID STARR JORDAN

Mr. Edward W. Bok offers a prize of $50,000 to the author of "the best practicable plan by which the United States may co-operate with other nations to secure the peace of the world."

This sum will be paid as soon as the jury of award has made its decision.

A second prize of $50,000 will go to the same winner "when the plan in substance and intent is approved by the United States Senate or H. and when, the jury of award decides that an adequate degree of popular support has been demonstrated for the winning plan" on or before March 4, 1925.

The question of whether amendments which may be made in the Senate affects the intent of the plan submitted is left entirely to the jury of award.

Subsidiary awards, amounting in all to $20,000, may be made to other competitors, parts of whose work may be accepted as components of a complete plan.

The plans submitted should not be in the form of bills, resolutions or treaties suitable for presentation to the Senate.

The plan may contain an argument, but the whole must not exceed 5,000 words. It must be accompanied by a summary of not more than 500 words. Plans may be submitted by any citizen of the United States or by any organization or society. Only one plan may be submitted by any one person.

Manuscripts must be typewritten, on one side only of the page. They must not be rolled nor contain any identifying marks. Each must have with it a plain sealed envelope with the author's name and address, not to be opened until the award is made. No manuscript will be returned and jury of award will be free to publish any of them in any way it may choose.

Manuscripts must be in the hands of the jury of award before midnight of November 15, 1923.

All inquiries should be directed to the American Peace Award, 342 Madison Avenue, New York City.

The award will set thousands of capable people to thinking seriously of how to save civilization. If any means of opposing war exists within the range of possible action, this offer should bring it into irresistible prominence.

Ten years ago, those of us who were working in England for peace found that each new group believed that it had something more effective than any of the others, and a certain degree of mild jealousy existed. Some accepted the old moral and idealistic ground of the Quakers.

Studebaker Big-Six Sets Record For Long Service Over Pike's Peak Trail

Studebaker Big-Six touring car used by Edward J. Ryan in 57,135 miles of service over the famous Pike's Peak trail.

The black line shows the route regularly covered by Mr. Ryan's Studebaker for the past three years.

Pike's Peak—one of the highest mountains in the United States—is used quite frequently for endurance and hill-climbing tests by the manufacturers of American motor cars. In fact, a number of specially built cars are annually pitted against each other in spectacular hill-climbing feats up the steep and winding trail leading to the summit.

But to a regular stock model Studebaker Big-Six touring car, owned by Edward J. Ryan and that all war was inherently wicked. Some insisted on Norman Angell's thesis that there could be no "Fruit of Victory," even in an economic sense. Some, with Dr. Jacques Novicow of Odessa, argued that "the supposed benefits of war" were a delusion; others, with George Herbert Ferris, counted up the men interested in armament building; and regarded the whole traffic as imminently dangerous; others, like myself, looked toward the last cost of war, its eugenic destruction of the fittest and their natural progeny; others saw a world-menace in imperialism, and for money on which it rests. Others trusted in education and in religion, sure to win in the long run though not at once. Some, as Leon Bourgeois and Henri La Fontaine, declared for the reign of law, of which all war is a brutal, blind violation, with the expectation of world federation, at first appearing as the United States of Europe. It transpired at last that all were working to the same end, however different the means, and to all of us alike applied the dictum of Norman Angell, "We were not successful; we were merely right."

used continuously in hire service since June 6, 1919, belongs credit for the most remarkable demonstration of motor car efficiency over this famous mountain trail.

On June 8th, of this year, Mr. Ryan's Big-Six had covered a total distance of 57,135 miles (91,416 kilometres). During this entire service, the engine had been taken down but once, and then only for inspection, every working part having been found in such perfect condition that no replacements were necessary.

Regardless of weather conditions, Mr. Ryan's car makes one trip up the "peak" and one trip down, every day during the tourist season, and has been performing this service for the past four years with unusual dependability. One party of tourists was so impressed with the performance of the Big-Six that inquiries were made as to the actual mileage of the trip and the average time required. These inquiries produced the following information: The trip up is 34.7 miles (55.5 kilometres). Coming down, because the inside of many turns are taken by the driver, the trip is 1.3 miles shorter (2.1 kilometres). This is convincing evidence of the number and severity of the turns. Despite the fact that climbing is continuous, Mr. Ryan's Big-Six ascends the "peak" in 1 hour and 55 minutes. Mr. Ryan reports that it is never necessary for him to change into first gear in making the climb, unless traffic compels him to come to a halt. A tourist reporting an excursion recently made to the "peak" Big-Six says:

"A score of cars were passed on the road going and returning. Going up, many of these cars were in low gear; none of them made the climb that day without stopping at one or more of the three water stations to replenish their radiators, except three Studebakers. This is remarkable when it is considered that the boiling point of water at the "peak", 14,109 feet (4279 meters) above sea level is 86 degrees Centigrade."

"I was certainly most agreeably impressed with the performance of the Big-Six over this mountain highway, and in talking to a number of people who make regular trips up and down Pike's Peak Trail, I was told, that the Big-Six was found to be ideally adapted to the gruelling service of mountain climbing."

Further proof of the exceptional power and stamina of the Big-Six and its suitability to the hard service demanded of a motor car in constant use over Pike's Peak Trail is reflected by the number of drivers, in addition to Mr. Ryan, who regularly use Big-Sixes in carrying tourists to the top of the "peak."

CHAMPIONS DEFEATED BY CLUB ELEVEN

S. F. C. First String Team
Too Much For
The Recs

FAST, CLEAN GAME

Engineers Get Draw
With St. Xavier's
In Good Game

BY "WHISTLE"

Ideal conditions reigned yesterday for football and the League fixtures were carried on one more stage.

The chief interest centered in the meeting of the Recs and the S. F. C. in both divisions.

That the Recs second string had to concede the points was not surprising, as the Club has a large personnel to call on, but it was a surprise that the champions went down to the S. F. C. first, in a 5-4 hardly contested game.

They should not have done so, as in the first part of the second half, they dominated the game, and had plenty of chances to get ahead, but wasted them, whereas the Club wasted little when near goal.

The Engineers with a weak team kept their end up drawing with St. Xavier's. Heavy scoring in the second division brought the Customs and Police in winners by 8-0 and 6-0 respectively.

RECS VS. S. F. C.

This was a fast clean game with flashes of brilliant play at intervals, but despite the large score, the defence showed up to the best advantage.

It opened with a spell of open play and then the Club began to press against the wind, the first chance fell from a pass by Nichols from the left, but the ball bounced too high for Goldman to tackle it.

A couple of corners followed, but nothing accrued, Phillips heading over from the second.

A fine run by Johansson transferred, but the defence was too good at close quarters.

GOLDMAN OPENS

It was not long before the Club broke through, pretty combination between Goldman and Coulcher beat the defence, and the latter placed out of Baker's reach.

The Club were playing well at this period and would have had several but for the steady play of Xavier and Turner who put up a grand defense. A good chance came for the Recs when Leach ran out to clear, Johansson passed to Sofoulis but too far back, and the latter could not shoot before Leach got back.

Then followed steady pressure by the Recs, Leach saving a dangerous one from C. Sofoulis, and watching a clearing head from his brother skid the ball, and again having to save a long screw from Torley.

RECS EQUALISE

At last they drew level, Turner ran up and passed to Johansson, who beat Leach with a low one.

Then after a spell of even play, the Club took the lead with a couple more.

Coulcher got away, beating Turner in his stride and sent in one of his best, which no one could have stopped.

Almost directly after this Goldman made a slanting dribble to the left, and beat Baker with an oblique shot into the far corner.

There was no further score in the half, though Baker saved a deadly drop from Nichols at a critical moment, and the Recs should have had another, Evans getting away and scoring one in which Leach saved but, the clearance fell at Johansson's feet who hurried it, putting clean over with an open goal in front.

The second half was exciting, as the Recs played better against the wind and looked like equalising, which they should have done, but on the whole their play in front of goal was disappointing.

JOHANSSON AGAIN

Their second point was a beauty, Johansson running up, streaked across to the left and put in a perfect cross drive, which beat Leach all the way.

Then the Club broke away, and Goldman passing to Coulcher, the latter went through, adding a fourth.

Again Recs pressure followed and several fine chances came along, one of which at least was

SPORT AND STAGE BY DOMINO

SHAKESPEARE'S COME BACK

This "Ye Olde English Fayre," has gone over with a "Dempsey-cum-Tingle" Wallop! I have an idea that Conan Doyle, or one of his ilk, got into communication with my friend Shakespeare, and brought him back from "the Undiscovered Country" to "look-see" this "Ye Olde English Fayre" and also the present welfare—moral and otherwise—of our Model Settlement.

Let me give you his impressions. He's a bit off color—probably a "little fever." That is why the following is not quite up to the standard of his "Hamlet"—sub title:

"Once more unto the bar, dear friends, once more,
And fill the vacuum 'all the same, before!"

BY WILLIAM S. DOMINO

'Tis Strange! This wicked, little world of ours
Doth change so much, and yet, methinks, the hours
Do in their courses bring us smiles and tears,
While prohibition frowns on 'em "near bears."
Ah, me! When Lizzie sat upon the throne,
We, sure, could quaff our ale and marrow bone,
And good roast beef. Prithree! where are your manners!
Today, I hear, that you have no bananers!

The quality of mercy we'll not strain,
And so in this my story I refrain
From telling of our telephones and trams,
That make us utter, oft times, little "it!"

And "Ye Olde English Fayre!" Ye ladies charming!
Ann Hathaway doth quote my chits alarming,
So when again these earthly joys I sip
Don't stick me twenty cents for "Lucky dip."
But what a strange and errant knave am I
Unless I write and tell about Shanghai.
'Tis true I once did say in my "Macbeth"
Get thee to bed, at twelve, "it would be my death"
Today to clip another hour from our
The time that maiden, matron, guy and tor
Do spend their leisure hours—But Fancy me
Fox trotting with Ophelia, till threat!

One merry piece of news this week I pen—
The Chairman of the Council's Fauspender!
A right good man, who hasn't many foes,
He'll fill the chair with brains plus adipose.

To be or not to be—that is the query,
And framed they say is getting very weary
Of asking reparations from her foes—
But that's the least of Germany's and woes.
She made her mark among your worldly nations
But now her mark marks but depreciations!

Ah me! 'Tis sad to hear those Rhural panners
Sing "We've got marks, but we've got no bananers!"

Methinks, 'twas good to see on Friday night
The Carlton filled with folks to see the fight
Twixt Billy Tingle and a little Chadwick lad—
The show presented made the sportsman glad.
But many pretty maids were also there
And positi matrons—mostly with bobbed hair—
When Lizzie sat upon her throne the story
Was "Woman's hair is truly woman's glory."

But that's another question. Let me tell
How Billy beat the lad who fought so well.
For fifteen rounds they danced and dodged and hit
And at the end they both looked mighty fit.

'Twas pleasing thus to see the manly sport
Gain worthy place—and all the boys who fought
Have placed the fine old game upon the map
And so to them and Sam we lift the cap.

That little Chadwick rushed his "Bantam Fox"
And pushed him through the ropes, but Bill said "No."
Just wait a minute, sonny and you'll see
A little left. It all belongs to me."
And sure enough, he worked it with a will,
Each blow looked if it had the power to kill.
Where Billy Tingle very justly won
He got two smacks in to the other's one.
'Tis true, I heard one critic sadly cry
"Tis Chadwick's fight" but you can sure rely Upon O'Hara's judgment, Barlett's too,
With Rodger chipping in with vote as true.

My friends, 'tis good we've dollars, francs and rappers,
But sad not to sing "Yes, no bananers."

Yanks Get $6,350 Apiece For Their Work

For Their Work

BY "WHISTLE"

New York, Oct. 25.—A new record of 301,430 people attended the World Series games, and paid $2,063,312 to see the Yankees mop up McGraw's husky Giants, four games to two.

In the distribution of bonuses the Yankees get 60 percent and the Giants 40 percent of the gate receipts for the first four games.

All the gate receipts for the other games go to the baseball commission, club owners and others.

This year the Yankee players receive about $6,350 each, and the Giants $4,348 each for the World Series games.

FOOTBALLERS AT S.A.S. BEGIN WORK FOR THE SEASON

Rugby To Be Confined To Interclass Game; Soccer
Players Busy

BY LOWELL UPSON

The S. A. S. students have now abandoned all of their warm weather sports and have taken up the old gridiron game since Jack Frost has turned his attention to Shanghai.

Although there will be possibly no outside game played the big match of the year will be the interclass affair. The Seniors and Sophomores have formed an eleven against the Juniors and Freshies. This game which will be played around Thanksgiving Day is for the cup which was presented by the American Oriental Banking Corporation and will probably be a humdinger, as both sides claim they will walk away with their mealy opponents.

Practice was begun on Thursday with Coach Edmunds managing the Seniors side while Stewart, a new man from America, has taken the Juniors in hand. Although the Juniors have had a shade on their opponents because of their large turnouts the Seniors state they prefer quality to quantity. Harold Brewster, the old football standby for S.A.S., will captain the Senior bunch while the Juniors have chosen Roy Squires the famous full back for their leader.

So with possibly the best players in school divided on opposite sides action will probably be plentiful when the time comes to show it. In the practice very little scrimmaging has been done but preliminary setting up exercises has been the main thing so as to test the boys' wind after their long idleness. Forward passing has also been one of the main branches of practice, so as to get accustomed to the old smack of the leather.

While the gridiron men have been busy at the game the soccer

HANBURY SCHOOL HAS ITS ANNUAL SPORTS PROGRAM

Keenly Contested Program
Carried Out At Hongkew Park

The tenth annual sports of the Thomas Hanbury School for Boys were held at Hongkew Park yesterday afternoon. A large program was carried through with a speed and precision that might be expected of the experienced official in charge. Competition was keen, and some good sport was witnessed by a large crowd of parents and friends. Browning House won the Hucklestep Shield, and H. Park the School Championship Cup by many points.

The Junior champion was G. Gurevitch, and the Bantam prize was won by Tara Singh. The headmaster, A. J. Stewart, Esq.

NEW CHAMPIONS IN TENNIS WELL DESERVE TITLE

Shanghai College Players
Proved Superiority
Easily This Year

Winning 32 sets out of 35, thereby annexing 14 matches out of 15 in the East China Intercollegiate Tennis Championships series held at Nanking, Shanghai College achieved a good record in the game this year. From the results of the matches it can be seen that Shanghai College came out of the series at the top with not much difficulty, and therefore deserve the intercollegiate title.

In the first round Shanghai defeated Fuh Tan University which was at first figured as a close contender for the championship. The results turned out to be a one-sided game in favor of the former. They repeated their victory over the St. John's players in the semi-finals, and in the finals with the Soochow team, they had but little trouble.

Coach Kelhofer deserves great credit for his efficient coaching which enabled the team to capture the championship title. Following are the results of the

Di Dios

Di Dios is a fine little fighter but he wasn't up to snuff on Friday. His hand gave him a good deal of trouble and so he was not able to score the hat trick over Carleton.

Carlton Theater

Two exceptionally good films were promised the patrons of the Carlton this week. A first National Production with Constance Talmadge in "Mamma's Affair" and United Artists super-special with Charles Ray in "The Tailor Made Man."

Starting with today's matinee Constance Talmadge appears in "Mamma's Affair." The always engaging Constance Talmadge carries off the stellar honors. It is the screen version of Rachel Barton Butler's Harvard University prize play, which enjoyed a Broadway success last season.

The director, Victor Fleming, has succeeded, it is said, in making it even more pleasing than when presented as a stage play.

The sparkling times which gave the play such vogue are preserved in the film, while the screen version, perhaps because the camera gives a wider scope to the scenes of merriment, is even more replete with laughs than the play. It is a stringently chosen starring vehicle for the dainty comedienne.

Miss Talmadge is said not only to repeat her former triumphs, but to ascend to new heights in her interpretation of the role of Eve.

The cast is carefully chosen and deserves mention. Kenneth Harlan, who is Miss Talmadge's leading man, plays the part of Doctor Harmon. Edna Shannon essays the role of Mrs. Orrin, the mother of Eve. Katherine Kasel interprets the character of Mrs. Marchant, the sycophantic friend of Mrs. Orrin. George Le Guere appears as Henry Marchant her son and a handsome husband of Eve while Gertrude Le Brandt is "Buddy," Mrs. Orrin's confidential maid.

Starting Wednesday night the Carlton will present Charles Ray, in his initial United Artists production, "A Tailor Made Man." Adapted to the screen from one of the outstanding stage successes of the last several seasons, "A Tailor Made Man" is said to afford to Mr. Ray opportunities to display his almost talents to supreme advantage. In fact, to score one of the great triumphs of his already notable career.

It has been a long time since so many first rate players appeared together in a single production. In the supporting cast appear such names as Ethel Grandin, Jacqueline Logan, Thomas Richetta, Douglas Gerrard, Victor Potel, Thomas Jefferson, Kate Lester, Edith Chapman, William Parke, Stanton Heck and Frank Butler. "A Tailor Made Man" was directed by Joseph De Grasse, who directed Charles Ray in "The Old Swimmin' Hole," "Nineteen and Phyllis" and "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway."

BEAUTY COLLECTION

CUTTINGS FROM BEAUTY ARTICLES. THE CREAM OF MODERN BEAUTY ADVICE.

REMOVING BAD COMPLEXIONS

Cosmetics can never really help a poor complexion; often they are positively harmful. The sensible, rational way is to actually remove the thin veil of stifling, half-dead skin from the face, and give the fresh, vigorous, and beautiful young skin underneath a chance to show itself and to breathe.

This is best done in a very simple way, by merely applying mercuric acid wax at night, like cold cream, and washing it off in the morning. It absorbs the disfiguring cuticle gradually and harmlessly, leaving a brilliant natural complexion. Of course, this also takes with it all such facial blemishes as red blotches, tan, moth patches, sallowness, liver spots, etc.

The new skin is usually several degrees lighter, and finer in texture.

TO KILL HAIR ROOTS

Women annoyed with disfiguring growths of superfluous hair wish to know not merely how to temporarily remove the hair but how to kill the roots permanently. For this purpose pure-powdered phenol may be applied directly to the objectionable hair growth. The recommended treatment is designed not only to instantly remove the hair but also to actually kill the roots so that the growth will not return. About an ounce of phenol should be sufficient.

HOW TO HAVE THICK AND PRETTY HAIR

Soaps and artificial shampoos ruin many beautiful heads of hair. Few people know that a teaspoonful of good gallax dissolved in a cup of hot water has a natural affinity for the hair and makes the most delightful shampoo imaginable. It leaves the hair brilliant, soft and wavy, cleanses the scalp completely and greatly stimulates the hair growth. The only drawback is that it seems rather expensive. It comes to the chemist only in sealed 1/4 lb. packages. However, this is sufficient for twenty-five or thirty shampoos, and it really works out very cheaply in the end.

Champions Defeated By Club Eleven

spoiled by over-zealousness resulting in off side.

At last Watson sent in a fine pass from the line which found A. Sofoulis in a perfect position, and he made no mistake.

Suddenly the Club got away again and Coulcher beating Turner, sent in a stinger, scoring his third, and the Club's fifth.

Just before the end the Reds had a cunshaw goal. Leach ran out to a cross pass, and somehow missed it by a foot or so, and turned round to see C. Sofoulis stroll quietly into goal with it.

For the Reds the backs were certainly the stars. Xavier was great, time and again he swung across and cleared when Turner was hard pressed.

Coulcher and Goldman, with Phillips hanging round, are no easy lads to stop, but the backs did it most of the time, and they were only beaten by mighty good play.

Among the forwards, Johnson had flashes of his best, but their display was not up to last year's standard by a long way, they seemed unable to get together properly.

Coulcher and Goldman played hard dashing football for the Club, and did most of the attacking.

Hinton was the pick of the halves, tackling well, but a bit wild in his passing.

The surprise, however, was the Club's new back, Gowah, who we understood was to play for the Engineers, he certainly saved the
